Using Tanks in Western Frontier

The troops and Indian soldiers along the disputed Himalayan frontier, the spokesman indicated the Chinese were still advancing. They captured four more posts at the southern end of the Ladakh battlefield in northwest India, one post falling to tanks after they had turned back two previous Chinese assaults, he said.

Indian Prime Minister Nehru, sought to tighten relations with neighboring Himalayan states. Peiping radio, which says the Chinese are fighting in self-defense against Indian aggression reported an outbreak of fighting in a new area on the north side of the border claimed by India. It said Indian troops at Hsialinkung launched "a violent attack" and that Communist troops "were compelled to hit back."

Hsialinkung is in the Chayul area of Tibet, and is about 50 miles northeast of Taghla Ridge, which India claims as her northeastern border near the little Himalayan state of Bhutan.

India Loses 7 Posts

Indian defense officials said the Red Chinese launched a surprise attack at dawn Saturday from positions inside Indian territory. The Chinese accused the Indians of launching hostilities.

Indian defense officials admitted loss of at least seven border posts in the northeastern sector and in the Ladakh theater 900 to 4,200 miles to the northwest—both in 11 mottled snow-covered mountains 13,600 feet high.

Both Prime Minister Jigme Dorji of Bhutan and the crown prince of Sikkim, Maharaja Kumbhraj Palden Thondup Namgyal, arrived in New Delhi for emergency talks.

India is reported to have asked Bhutan for permission to send in a military defense force. Red China has claimed a part of southeastern Bhutan.

Court Refuses to Rule in New York Wiretapping Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court refused today to rule on an appeal contending state-authorized wiretapping in pursuit of law violators is a violation of the U.S. Constitution.

The ruling was asked by counsel for three New York men convicted of bookmaking at a trial in which recorded telephone conversations obtained by wiretapping comprised the state's basic evidence.

New York law permits wiretapping under court order. A section of the federal communications act says "no person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any communication" or divulge its contents.

In 1952 the Supreme Court in a Texas case said wiretap evidence might be received in state courts; although the admission in evidence violated federal law the court "refused to overturn a state rule of evidence." On March 29, 1961, the Supreme Court in an Ohio case said evidence obtained by searches and seizures in violation of the U.S. Constitution was not admissible in a criminal trial in a state court.

Personalities, Not Labels

Survey Shows No Political Tide Running in Favor of Either Party

BY JOHN SHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—With election day only two weeks from Tuesday no strong political tide seems to be running for either the Democrats or the Republicans.

Personalities often appear to overshadow party labels, pointed up by indications in a number of states that voters may elect a Democratic senator and a Republican governor or vice versa.

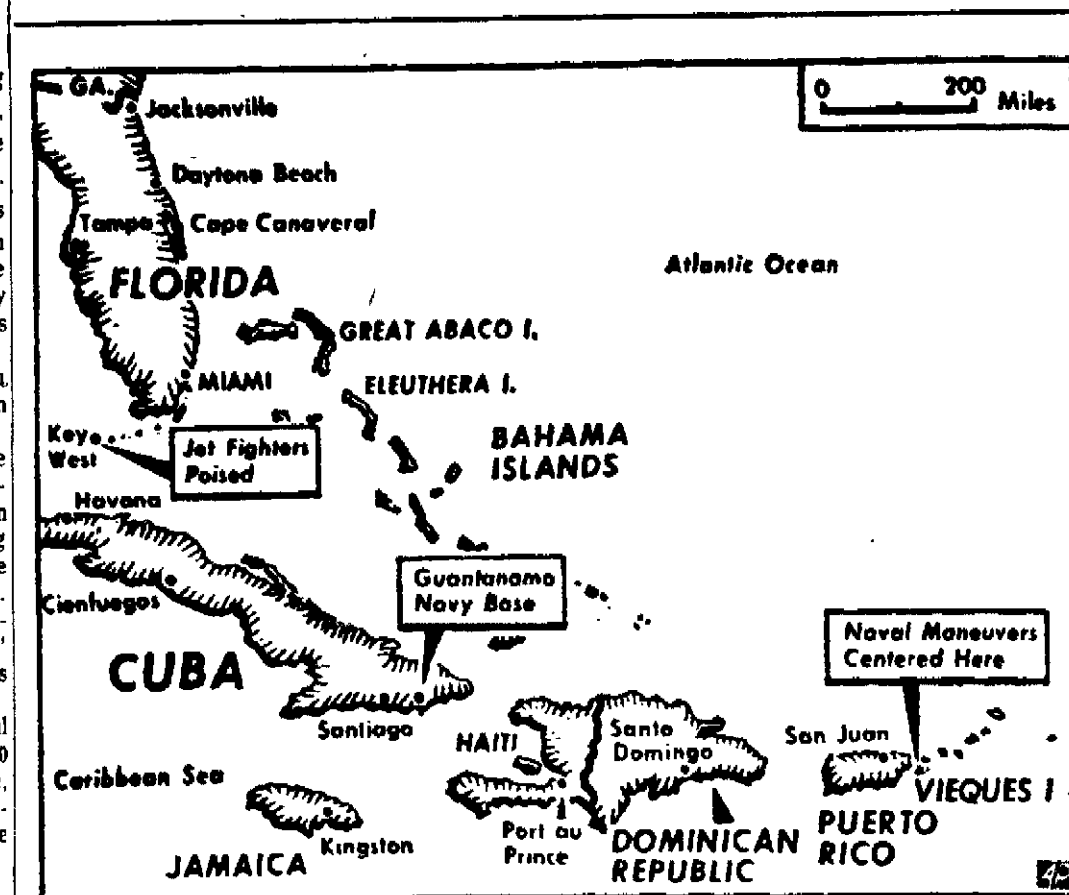

38 Senate Seats at Stake

At stake in the Nov. 6 voting will be 38 Senate seats—five of them for unexpired terms—and all 435 House seats. Thirty-five governors will be named.

A nationwide survey by The Associated Press fails to disclose any major upheaval in sight in the political make-up of Congress, where the Democrats now have heavy majorities in the Senate and House.

Best bet for any Republican surge apparently is in the state-house races, with GOP candidates

Nikita Said To Favor U. S. Berlin Talks

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev is reported to have expressed a desire for new Berlin negotiations after the American elections, but that the Soviet Union may take the issue to the United Nations unless the United States gives ground.

The views were reported in an interview Sept. 18 with a Belgian legislator, Raymond Scheyven, published Sunday by the Brussels paper Le Soir.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told a radio audience Sunday the West retains its "firm determination to protect its rights with every possible means." He added his forthright talks with President Kennedy "will above all serve the interests of Berlin."

West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder said that if Khrushchev visits Washington, it will be to "evade a crisis" over Berlin.

His remark was made in a radio-television interview recorded in Washington last week before Schröder's return to West Germany.

Delegates to Assembly Say They Expect Peiping Defeat

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Government controlling a fifth of the world's population.

Nationalist Chinese delegate Liu Chieh planned to reply with the argument that the Chinese people had repudiated the Peiping regime by fleeing the Chinese mainland in droves.

Liu was expected to contend that the Chinese Communists were committing aggression against India and should be kept out of the United Nations because the U.N. charter limits the membership to "peace-loving states."

U.S. delegate Adlai E. Stevenson was listed to speak third, followed by representatives of Afghanistan and Morocco.

A vote on the Soviet resolution was likely between Thursday and Monday. Many observers remarked that there seemed to be less enthusiasm for the Red Chinese cause this year than last.

The Soviet resolution was defeated then 48-36, with 20 nations abstaining.

Gov. Nelson Unhurt In Auto Collision

MADISON (AP)—Gov. Gaylord Nelson escaped injury Saturday night when the police car in which he was riding and another automobile collided on a Madison street.

The governor was on his way from the Madison airport to the Wisconsin field house for the inauguration of Dr. Fred Harrington as president of the university.

The police car was so badly damaged that Nelson had to transfer to another automobile for the remainder of his trip.

No Disunity on World Crises, Ike's Appeal

Former President Stresses Need for National Harmony

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower says political snipers should hold their fire while President Kennedy is trying to deal with an international crisis.

To subject him to campaign attacks while he is attempting to cope with a current foreign policy problem is to weaken and divide the nation, Eisenhower said in a taped television interview—ABC—Politics '62—broadcast Sunday.

At the same time the former president stoutly defended the Republican party's right to discuss policy matters that are history and the general long-range attitude of the nation toward its whole position in the world.

"Any pronouncements he may make respecting an impending crisis is almost sacrosanct as far as I am concerned," Eisenhower said. "If anyone argues with him, and the bigger the following this opponent gets, the more it has divided our country."

Eisenhower's comments came in the wake of congressional campaign cross-fire over the Communist regime in Cuba and the Berlin crisis. Last Monday, in a Boston speech, Eisenhower joined in the fray, criticizing Kennedy for conducting "a dreary foreign policy... too sad to talk about."

In that stinging attack, Eisenhower termed "a strange departure from fact" a quote he attributed to Kennedy that "during eight years of Republican administration our foreign policy drifted aimlessly about."

Eisenhower said Sunday, "I think that probably we have

Colombia's Military Has Leaves Cancelled

Bogota, Colombia (AP)—The army, navy and air force have been on alert and leaves have been canceled, Radio Caracol announced today.

The radio station chain, quoting what it described as informed sources in the military high command, said the order was issued after an emergency meeting of military leaders this morning.

No reason for the action was given, but there was speculation it might be linked to the developing Cuban crisis in the United States.

President Calls Leaders Of Congress; Schedules Early Evening TV Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy called a series of crisis conferences at the White House today and scheduled a television address to the nation tonight on "a subject of the highest national urgency."

Speculation persisted in high quarters here that Kennedy was ready to make some dramatic move in the Cuban situation with probable impact on the Berlin crisis and possibly repercussions in the Far East.

The White House announced that the President would go on television at 7 p.m. Washington time (5 p.m. CST). Meanwhile he summoned congressional leaders of both parties to an extraordinary session, rounding them

Abandon Norwegian Ship At Sea; At Least 20 Dead

Rescue Work Hampered By Weather

RORVIK, Norway (AP)—Rescue ships and planes found 20 bodies, and at least 20 persons were missing today after the Norwegian coastal liner Sanet Svithun was abandoned in stormy seas.

Five lifeboats with a total of 48 survivors—22 passengers and 26 crewmen—were picked up in the icy Norwegian Sea. Gale force winds and poor visibility hampered rescue operations.

Agents for the liner said she carried a crew of 50, instead of 45 as first reported, but they were unable to give the exact number of passengers, as tickets could be bought aboard ship.

Military planes searched the sea off Norway's west coast. Officials said there were several small islands where some survivors may have landed.

Rescue Ships

Rescue ships reported recovering eight bodies, while a Norwegian air force flying boat reported seeing another 12 bodies in the water.

The modern, 4th grade 135-ton liner was grounded Sunday night in gale force winds 4 miles south of Nordoya Lighthouse Island.

The ship, which it pulled itself clear, but it had been holed by the grounding. Thirty minutes later it radioed that it was taking a considerable amount of water and abandon ship was ordered.

Survivors said the sleek coastal ship was still afloat when they pulled away. Electric power on board had failed, and they could not estimate how many people had managed to escape in lifeboats.

Rocky Coast

The search director, O. B. Thodesen, harbor master of Rorvik, said the coastal area is littered with rocks and small islands.

"It would be extremely difficult to maneuver with a lifeboat in complete darkness under these conditions," Thodesen said, but he expressed the hope that search planes could locate survivors on the spots of high ground.

The Sanet Svithun, owned by the Stavanger Steamship Co., was on a six-day coastal run north-bound from Bergen to Kirkenes. Agents for the ship said about 45 passengers were aboard but the exact number would not be known for certain until they checked each coastal point at which the ship stopped.

Lucy Wants Kennedy to Set Another Date in Wisconsin

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wisconsin Democratic chairman Patrick J. Lucy of Madison planned to contact the White House today in an attempt to set up another date for President Kennedy in Wisconsin.

The President was forced to cancel his scheduled appearance at the Milwaukee County airport Saturday because of a cold but Lucy said he had been asked by the chief executive to contact him today in an attempt to set up another appearance.

Lucy said that a meeting could be set up in short notice if the President agreed to come here.

The Republican nominee for governor, Philip G. Kuehn, said Sunday that a general tax is the key to solution of two major problems confronting the state's elderly residents.

Kuehn said in a program paper that the problems fall into these two major categories:

Meeting increased property taxes on their homes while living on retirement income.

Paying for medical care which has grown more expensive.

Kuehn said that property tax relief is only possible through the sales tax program he has proposed. He also said that he favors state legislation under the federal Kerr-Mills Act, which makes funds available, on a matching basis, for a state program of medical care for the aged.

Hoffa Conspiracy Trial Opens Today

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The company from a Michigan firm conspiracy trial of Teamsters Union employees belong to the Teamsters Union.

At his arraignment last June he pleaded innocent and remained in federal court today. The judge, the Justice Department and defense lawyers agree it could last into the winter.

U. S. Dist. Judge William E. Miller said he has "pushed everything aside for this case."

Hoffa, who arrived by plane Sunday from Detroit, settled himself in a comfortable downtown hotel suite from which he expects to conduct the affairs of his 1.5-million-member union for the duration of the trial.

Newsman who met Hoffa at the airport heard him lash out at U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, a frequent Hoffa target.

"Bob Kennedy is using the taxpayers' money for his own personal vendetta," Hoffa said. He contended the attorney general is "usurping the powers of his office, making his own policies and starting out just like Hitler did. If we continue like we are in America, we will have no personal rights," Hoffa is accused of conspiring to violate the Taft-Hartley Act and with illegally obtaining a million dollars through a dummy corporation.

Fear 19 Dead In Mississippi River Collision

Bodies of Twelve Norwegians Found By Search Crews

LUTHER, La. (AP) — The grim task of searching for the missing continued today after a ship-barge collision that apparently took the lives of 19 Norwegian tanker crew members.

Twelve bodies—most of them badly burned—were recovered from the Mississippi River and the charred hulk of the 13,500-ton motor tanker Boheme. Searchers sought seven others still unaccounted for.

Firefighters put out the last blaze aboard the beached ship Sunday night—about 36 hours after the tanker, bound for the continent, collided near here with a string of oil barges towed by the tug Bonnie D.

Salvage Work

As salvage work began, the Coast Guard prepared an investigation but no hearing date was announced. A spokesman for A. O. Andersen Steamship Co., of Oslo, Norway, owner of the Boheme, said her cargo, which included a highly flammable nitrate solvent, was intact.

The spokesman said it was too early to give an estimate of damage, but fore and aft sections were badly charred. The engine room and nearby crew's quarters, where many were trapped, were heavily burned.

Burning oil from some of the four barges seeped into the channel and set the ship ablaze during the predawn hours Saturday.

Panic-stricken crewmen leaped into the flaming waters as fire roared across the Boheme's deck and explosions—apparently from the engine room—rocked the tanker. Seamen's cries could be heard from shore.

Body Identified

The lone identified body was that of Second Mate Hans Wilsen, 65, of Copenhagen. It was found in the river soon after the crash.

Two crewmen are in critical condition at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital in New Orleans, about 30 miles south of Luther. They are Gisle Magnusson, about 19, and Kjell Fjell, 17, both suffering from burns.

Six others, hospitalized here for treatment of minor burns and injuries, were released Sunday night. In all, 29 of about 50 aboard the tanker were reported hurt.

The Boheme's master, Capt. Rolf Gjelstad of Sandefjord, Norway, and his crew attended special memorial services at the Norwegian Seamen's Church in New Orleans. Among those reported dead and missing were an Irish seaman and a Danish crewman and his wife.

More Cultural Exchange With Reds Is Urged

American Assembly Adopts Report After Four-Day Meeting

Chicago Daily News Service

HARRIMAN, N.Y. — Expanded cultural exchanges with the communist world, including Red China, have been urged here by the American assembly.

A report resulting from a four-day meeting of 66 leaders in industry, government and education also called for setting up a U.S. Cultural Career Officer Service on equal footing with the U.S. Foreign Service.

The American Assembly was established as an arm of Columbia University by former President Eisenhower when he headed Columbia.

The assembly Sunday called for expansion of East and West cultural exchanges "independently of short-term fluctuations in cold war relationships" and not necessarily tied to man-for-man matching deals.

Useful Exchanges

"The possibility should not be excluded of establishing cultural contact, perhaps through private channels, with the people of Communist China under conditions that would insure useful exchanges," the report also said.

Noting that "some films, TV programs and other mass media now being exported tend to negate the favorable effects of our past 'cultural' efforts," the report called for financial aid to assure wider distribution of high-quality American radio, TV and films abroad.

The importance of the sciences in building U.S. prestige and expanding understanding, particularly with the communists and new nations, also was stressed.

Added government aid is needed, without imposing political restraints on private exchange programs by foundations, schools, business, labor, civic, religious and professional organizations already active, the report said.

Attack on India Cited British Laborites Still Favor Red China in U.N.

BY WILLIAM H. STONEMAN

Chicago Daily News Service

LONDON — British advocates of Red China's admission to the United Nations could formally be expected to pause and reflect or even to change their minds after China's open attack on India's northeast frontier.

But not so the Daily Herald, nominally the mouthpiece of the British Labor Party and a long-standing supporter of Red China's admission to the United Nations. In one of the quaintest editorials seen in London for a long time, it wrote today:

"About the only comforting factor in the situation is that winter will soon make operations in the Himalayas impossible. There will be a compulsory breathing space. This would be the opportunity for the United Nations to intervene—if only Communist China were a member of U.N."

"Once again," it continues, "the folly of China's exclusion is underlined. And it is folly even though China is now engaged in an act of aggression."

"The whole situation," it continues,

Discussion on Liturgy Begun In Rome by Council Fathers

Conference Gets Down to Business As Animated Speeches Are Given

BY BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council got down to business today with an apparently animated discussion about liturgy, or public worship.

After a three-hour session in St. Peter's, a spokesman said 21 council fathers had spoken on the subject, first on a long list of topics before the council.

It was the first full discussion session since the council—an assembly of almost 2,700 prelates around the world—had a ceremonial opening Oct. 11. Today's session was closed to the public.

Religious Area

"Liturgy is a purely religious area and its significance within the Church would be lost if it were buried among the other topics," said one of the experts, advising the council.

Liturgy includes both the form and the prayers of the Mass, the sacraments administered to Catholics and the daily office or set of prayers that every priest must say. So-called "secondary devotions" like novenas and the rosary are intended to bring the faithful closer to Mass and the sacraments, but they are not properly part of the liturgy.

Mother Finds Truck Driver Talk Is Nasty

LONDON (AP) — Anne MacDonald, a shapely mother of four, became a roadside vamp to slow down fast drivers.

In fetching halter top and figure-hugging jeans, she took up her stand outside the village of Graveley on the busy Great North Road.

Then she wiggleed her hips and gave the hitch-hiking thumb sign to every passing motorist.

When truck drivers pulled up to offer her a lift, Mrs. MacDonald, 31, smiled sweetly and said "Thank you for stopping. I do hope you will observe the speed limit through our village."

Mrs. MacDonald said she had written six times to the Transport Ministry asking that it do something about the many drivers who ignored the village's 30-mile-an-hour speed limit.

"I saw drivers whistling at pretty girls in the village and that gave me a new idea," she said. Mrs. MacDonald now has abandoned her vamp technique.

"The drivers were all as nasty as possible," she said. "I'm shocked."

"It would take the type of language used by truck drivers to describe my opinion of them."

the law are being disregarded and business is being severely handicapped. In some instances, enterprises are being strangled and forced to close down altogether. Here are a few of the practices that reveal glaring inconsistencies in today's labor-management laws and in the interpretations given them by the National Labor Relations Board:

1. A company that goes out of business because it thinks it cannot make ends meet is penalized by being ordered to continue to pay wages for work not being done if somehow the closing down can be related to a labor dispute. The "obligation" then continues indefinitely until the workers some day find "comparable" jobs. The big labor unions, however, with tens of millions of dollars in their treasuries are not required to bear any of this expense.

Unjustified Strike

1. A labor union can conduct an unjustified strike and put a company out of business but is under no obligation to reimburse the employer for any of his losses.

2. A labor-union executive for a region or area — with authority over many local unions — can nullify the desires of the members of a local union who may wish to accept a cut in wages as a means of helping to keep their employer in business.

Recent news dispatches describe instances in which companies have gone out of business due to labor difficulties.

Thus, the National Labor Relations Board — which now is controlled by Kennedy administration appointees — announced last Thursday that Deering Milliken, Inc., one of the country's largest textile companies, had been ordered to assume back-pay payments in behalf of a small company in Darlington, S.C., that it does not own but which happens to have in it some individuals who own some stock in both companies. The payments start from the time the Darlington Manufacturing Co. closed down in 1956 through the present and up to any future date until the employees shall find "comparable" employment.

Economic Causes

The board, by a 3-to-2 vote, analyzed the reasons for the shutdown and ruled that, while some of the causes may have been economic, the fact that there happened to be a labor dispute in which animosity was displayed by the employer toward the organizing of a union superseded all else and hence justified the imposition of a penalty in the form of back pay. No consideration was given to the company's legitimate desire to avoid the higher wage costs that the union would demand.

The textile company, in fighting the case, relied on a decision of the Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, evidently believing that in these days a court decision is a sacred matter and presumably must be obeyed even by governmental boards. The court had said:

"But none of this can be taken to mean that an employer does not have the absolute right, at all times, to permanently close and go out of business, or to actually dispose of his business to another, for whatever reason he may choose, whether union animosity or anything else, and without his being thereby left subject to a remedial liability under the Labor Management Relations Act for such unfair labor practices as he may have committed in the enterprise, except up to the time that such actual and permanent closing or true and bona fide change in ownership has occurred."

But the National Labor Relations Board said all this was "obiter dicta" — extraneous opinion — because, in that same case, the court happened to order reinstatement by the successor company of some employees unlawfully discharged by the predecessor company. In the Darlington case, however, there is no successor company, as the assets have been sold at auction. No case exactly like this one has been reviewed by the courts.

As for the instance in which the regional director of a steel union in western New York insisted that the local union in a small company maintain its wage rates in accordance with the rates prevailing in the big steel companies, this resulted in a closing of the plant. In this case, the company not only had recognized the union but had made a contract with it in 1960 which was still in effect. Yet, when most of the members really wanted to revise that contract to save their jobs, the national union stepped in and pressured the local union into voting against acceptance of the pay cut. It is reported that a threat was made to deprive the local union of certification in the international union.

So the Buffalo Steel Co. went out of business. Its 450 employees now are out of work and the prospects for reemployment are dim, because the area already has 7.9 per cent unemployment, which is well above the national average.

That's how the labor-union monopoly operates today in America, while European competitors, which face no such obstacles, are steadily sending their products to this country for sale at lower prices.

Drive Taken

Bartmann said he and Bruce Steger picked up Miss Gebheim and Miss Blazek about 8 p.m. at the corner of Mason Street and W. Glendale Avenue and drove around the city and into the country for several hours before the accident.

Earlier in the day, Miss Gebheim had gone to Miss Blazek's home to help Miss Blazek decorate the family car, which was used in the Appleton High School homecoming parade. Neither Miss Blazek nor Miss Gebheim attended the high school dance Saturday evening.

Bartmann was driving a 1962 car, owned by William Van Denzen, which he had borrowed from a friend, "Rocky" Langman, 1304 W. Commercial St. Bartmann said Langman had loaned the car to him early in the evening when Langman went to see his girl friend. The five were on the way to pick up Langman at his girl friend's home when the accident occurred.

Injuries Received

Al Steger received face injuries in the accident and Bartmann is being treated for fractures to the nose and other face injuries. Bruce Steger received leg injuries and face cuts and Miss Gebheim was treated for bruised legs.

Other than her parents, Miss Blazek is survived by one brother, two sisters and grandparents. Services for Miss Blazek will be at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday from St. Pius Catholic Church. Friends may call at the Wichmann Funeral Home after 3 p.m. today.

Nine other persons died in Wisconsin highway accidents over the weekend, raising the state's 1962 traffic toll to 744, compared with 714 on this day a year ago.

John Colleton, 81, of Neosho, was fatally injured near the Dodge County community Sunday when the car in which he was riding left the road. He died a few hours later at St. Mary's Hospital in Watertown.

Lydell Fanshaw, 23, and James Vujnovich, 21, both of Beaver Dam were killed early Sunday when their cars collided on Highway 23 near Beaver Dam.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jackson, 43, Milwaukee, was killed when struck at a Milwaukee intersection Saturday night by a car whose driver stopped and then fled on foot. He was picked up later.

Mrs. Robert Stroebel, 39, Jefferson, died Saturday night in a Fort Atkinson hospital of injuries sustained Sept. 30 in a Jefferson County highway crash which took the life of her husband.

Two are Killed

Darroll Possley, who was 22 years old Saturday, and Veronica Ponkrat, 43, both of Green Bay, were killed when two automobiles collided on Highway 57 near Green Bay Saturday night.

Mrs. Adeline Lau, 75, was injured fatally Saturday when the automobile in which she was riding was involved in a collision near Watertown.

Mrs. Olga A. Hillburg, 74, Kenosha, was killed early Saturday when a station wagon in which she was riding overturned near Manitowoc.

Democratic Foes

GREEN BAY — Rep. John W. Byrnes ended his first week of campaigning for re-election to congress in Green Bay Saturday. He struck out at Wisconsin Democratic candidates for congress "whose sole platform is their abject promise to deliver their votes in congress lock, stock and barrel to the president in power."

"The last thing needed in a Washington full of real Kennedys is 'Kennedy-type' congressmen," Byrnes said.

"Washington is full of Kennedys with another one trying hard to get there. If the day comes when a Kennedy dynasty is able to crack its royal whip and make a 'Kennedy-type' congress jump through a Kennedy hoop, then then representative government in America will be well on the way to extinction."

Next week Byrnes is scheduled to appear in Brown, Door, Outagamie and Manitowoc counties.

A Boost for Civil Defense

A verbal pat-on-the-back is in order for the Lutheran Aid Association for the outstanding cooperation it has given the city-county Civil Defense Administration.

In addition to being the first in the county to grant the CD administration permission to erect a warning siren on its College Avenue building, the association has also offered to provide the necessary power without charge.

The Lutheran Aid Association has set a fine example for others in Outagamie County.

In the near future, several other building owners will be contacted for permission to have sirens erected. It is hoped they will give the Civil Defense organization the same kind of patriotic cooperation offered by the Lutheran Aid Association.

If all goes well, Outagamie County could be the first in the country with a complete siren warning network.

Mr. Wieland and the Record

Last January when a woman reporter at a presidential news conference asked about William Wieland and called him "a known security risk," the President was angered. He fired back in defense of Wieland that he and Sec. Rusk had determined that Wieland could carry out his new assignment in Germany "without detriment to the United States, and I hope without detriment to his character by your question." But a new report by the Internal Security Subcommittee looking into the whole business of State Department security indicates that Wieland made some serious blunders in Cuba that were sufficient to label him a "security risk."

Security risk has come to mean a questioning of the individual's loyalty and presumably this is what angered the President. But the subcommittee's report says that Wieland's case "like the majority of security cases, does not involve loyalty. It involves such factors as integrity and general suitability." It appears from Wieland's continued benevolence by Fidel Castro, although he says he did not like him personally, that he was generally unsuitable.

In some way, of course Wieland alone cannot be blamed and certainly his reports to the State Department were not the only reason Cuba fell to the Reds or that the United States in various ways helped in the downfall. The hatred of Batista and the almost universal insistence of Castro's purity, more moral than political, helped the catastrophe. There still is wide disagreement among people who should know better as to whether Castro fell to the Red blandishments or was pushed by alleged antagonism in the United States.

But more serious than Wieland's poor judgment regarding Castro and his Communist backing is a further paragraph in the subcommittee's report. Wieland's security clearance had been held up after his reassignment to Germany, says the report, and then was "improperly" issued about the time of the news conference. "Or else the State Department records were arranged after Mr. Wieland had been mentioned at a presidential press conference so as to show he had been cleared several months before. There is substantial evidence that this may have been the case."

If the President made a mistake in defending Wieland, not in his loyalty but his efficiency and judgment, the President should have said so later. The charge that federal agency records were arranged or even falsified to make the President of the United States appear infallible is shocking.

Nehru's Double Standard

The double standard toward the Soviet Union and the United States which Prime Minister Nehru of India so often evinces is somewhat explained by a study of his talks and answers to questions during his brief tour in the United States last winter. Nehru, it seems, is a hard-headed realist but he tries to cloak it in humanitarianism.

One's attitude toward affairs of the world depend upon where one lives, Nehru says in pointing out why Africans get more concerned about a French explosion of a nuclear device in the Sahara than all the massive Russian detonations in Siberia. And the age-old colonial hatreds are still with Nehru so that he sees colonialism, so obviously on the run all around the world, as a dangerous enemy.

But in favoring self-determinism for the natives of Angola and other colonies, Nehru quibbles about self-determinism for the peoples of Eastern Europe. He admits that it is unfortunate that they are under Russian domination. He concedes that the Russians acted in a "brutal manner" toward Hungary. But he claims that the pressure upon Hungary was somehow or other the fault of those old colonial nations because it came about the same time as the French and British attack upon the Suez. This equating of apples and oranges is spread through much of Nehru's political philosophy. Two areas in point are the Kashmir where self-determinism means no plebiscite to Nehru and Red China and Goa where the use of force to repel the invaders or to take back territory is permissible.

The real reason why Nehru cautions the West not to stir things up too much in Berlin or Eastern Europe seems to revolve around a solid recognition of the dangers of Soviet power. It is worth risking a fracas to set free the people of Angola because the Portuguese are obviously not equipped to plunge the world into a nuclear war. But we must tread softly in Berlin because we could trigger a Russian response. In the same way it is pretty safe to chew out the Americans for not accepting an unopposed and uncontrolled nuclear test moratorium in spite of the Russian perfidy but too harsh things should not be said to Khrushchev when the Soviet Union breaks its word.

This recognition of the Soviet power is sound. We agree with Nehru that care must be taken not to start a nuclear war. But we do not think it makes sense to pass off this respect for naked military might with vague words about human rights and the responsibilities of the free peoples of the world. Nehru's mistake is not so much that he sees the difference between criticizing the free world and the Communist one but that he tries to condone the double standard on any other terms than realizing the hard and dangerous facts of life in a divided world.

Looking Backward

'Deception, Robbery Combined'

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Oct. 25, 1862.

Hastings, the man who runs the State Treasury for the benefit of the abolitionists, has just made his report for the year. In this report he says:

"There is still remaining in the Treasury, unsold, 37 bonds of the five year's issue totalling $37,000 and 384 bonds redeemable in 1877 at $100 each, totalling $38,400."

These are war bonds. In addition to these bonds, the Governor has just received from the Federal Treasury $140,000 in return for sums advanced by the State for war purposes. This makes $215,400.

Now it will take less than $50,000 per month to pay the families of soldiers. The sum of $150,000 would pay every dime due between this date and next February, when the new tax bill will be available.

Compare these facts with the statement of Hastings when he says he "shall speedily send to every soldier and soldier's family," whose address he can ascertain, as follows:

"After the middle of November the payment of $5 per month promised to the volunteers will be stopped, not to be resumed until sometime in the month of February."

Somebody is responsible for this? Who is it? The Democratic members of the last Assembly?

So the payment is to be stopped with a war fund of $215,400 in the treasury? We hope every soldier in the army will help to mark the man who first attempts to deceive them, and then to rob them.

Soldiers, when your families are suffering for want of the aid pledged to you by the State, remember who it is that prevents them from receiving it!

Mothers, when your children are suffering for food and comfortable clothing, remember who it is that deprives you of what was promised by the State when you consented that your husband should leave his family and go to fight the battles of our common country, and see if he can give you a satisfactory reason for the course pursued!

Robots Now Being Shot at Moon Will Blaze Way for Man's Trips

WASHINGTON — The Columbus of the Space Age is a machine. Man is going to the moon someday, but talented hardware is finding the way for him.

In a recent issue of National Geographic, staff writer Frank Startwell describes the astonishing array of robots that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to send on the 238,000-mile journey to the moon.

The first American "moon machines" are Rangers, which will be launched by powerful rockets. "Some day they will seem as crude as Columbus's Santa Maria today," Mr. Startwell writes. But to our eyes they are amazing, and they do amazing things.

Versatile Machine

"If the rockets and all the Ranger systems work," he continues, "Ranger will see; it will feel, it will count; it will remember. It will turn and twist in space — by command or on its own initiative. Ranger will capture sunlight, turn it into electricity, then into radio waves. It will take pictures and relay them to earth. (Like human photographers, Ranger must be sure to remove its lens cap.) It will tell us much about what the moon is made of."

This spacecraft is 8 1/2 feet high and divided into two major parts: Ranger's larger section — the "basic bus" — is an hexagon of gold-plated electronic boxes with two winglike solar panels and two antennas. Above these rests the second section, the lunar capsule, a 24 1/2-inch ball that will alight on the moon.

Of the five Rangers launched, only one hit the moon, and it sent back no information.

As Ranger flies ever nearer, it will make more than 150 lunar closeups, each covering a smaller area than the one before, with increasingly better definition. It should discern objects the size of a compact car.

The photographic mission ends when Ranger is 70,000 feet above the moon. The basic bus will be detached from the lunar capsule and crash into the moon. The capsule, slowed by a retrorocket and protected by a balsa wood shell, will bounce onto the moon's surface to do its job.

Moonquake Sensor

The principal instruments in the capsule will be a radio transmitter and a moonquake sensor. The radio will relay the readings of the seismometer, which is so sensitive it will be able to feel the shock of a five-pound meteorite hitting the other side of the moon.

The instrument will count the number and size of meteors striking the moon, vital information for future moon voyagers. It will tell what the moon's surface is like — whether there is a firm crust to support manned ships.

Mr. Startwell says the seismometer may also yield a clue to the origin of the solar system.

There are two chief theories of the solar system's formation. One theory holds that the planets were pulled from the sun in blobs of hot gas when another star passed close by. The second theory maintains that the planets formed from a huge mass of cold dust and gas.

"Earth is so large that its own weight could have squeezed its core into a molten state. Some astronomers do not believe that the moon is massive enough to create the interior heat necessary to form a molten core on its own. If a liquid lunar core is found, the hot-gas theory will be strengthened."

We learned about the nature of the earth's core through study of earthquake shock waves. Ranger's moonquake recorder may give us the same knowledge about the moon.

"Rangers 6, 7, 8, and 9, scheduled for launching in 1963, will have a different job. Each will carry radiation instruments and six television cameras. The cameras will take more than 3,000 pictures of the moon, in far greater detail than those of Ranger 5."

Machines to Chew Moon
"The Rangers will be followed, if all goes well," Mr. Startwell writes, "by Surveyors, which will land softly, bite into the moon's surface, chew it up, analyze it, and report."

A processing chamber will grind rocks, heat them, and detect gases. Bombardment with X-rays may submit other materials to analysis. The Surveyor also will measure the tenuous atmosphere (if any) of the moon, and record temperature, radioactivity, and magnetic field.

"Surveyors, due to start flying in 1964, will also take pictures in color and stereo," Mr. Startwell says. "Other Surveyors could orbit the moon, search photographically for possible landing places, and give us our first detailed map of the surface."

By 1970, if plans work out, man will follow Ranger and Surveyor in a Project Apollo moonship.

"Moon and earth today are closer, in time, than America and Europe were when Santa Maria sailed into the unknown," Mr. Startwell concludes. "As man once burst from the Old World, so he must work his way out of the comfortable cocoon of earth's atmosphere and take not only the moon but the whole solar system as his New World."

GI Wives Upset Over European Gold Buttons

From The Memphis Commercial Appeal

Wives of United States servicemen in Europe are reported much upset about the gold situation. It seems that the European designers and fashion experts have been using gold coins as "status symbols" on their creations. The idea is that the European women now have everything, so the only way to make a show is to wear $25 gold pieces as buttons or bangles.

But American wives are not allowed to have gold coins. Under an order issued by President Kennedy, all Americans abroad must turn in their gold coins by next Jan. 1.

The situation should not cause too much smarting, though. In our eyes, gold coins or not, American women always look like a million dollars.

Carley Saying Things About Senator Wiley That Nelson Can't Say

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON, Wis. — David Carley, the young state department head who resigned the most lucrative job he ever had to run for the part-time office of lieutenant governor, is spending most of his time denouncing Sen. Alexander Wiley and supporting the drive of his friend Gov. Nelson to replace the veteran Republican in Washington.

Wyngaard

Carley might reason that anything he can do for Nelson will help himself. He is a part of the Democratic party ticket and if Nelson is successful, there is a fair chance that the running-mates will prosper too.

But the purpose of these attacks on Wiley from the headquarters of Carley is not quite as simple as that. Quite obviously, the Democrats are putting into the willing mouth of Carley some of the accusations and challenges that the governor himself does not feel it is seemly, or useful, to make directly.

HOW IT GOES

This is an ancient device in the tactics of parties in the campaign season. It is hard enough for the minor office candidate to attract attention, or to find something that is relevant to his inferior office that will interest anybody if he says it, and so he is usually willing enough to do such jobs for the dividends they pay in personal attention.

Thus Carley with no little subtlety has put out press releases denying that a man is necessarily too old at the age of 78 to serve in the United States Congress. Many men at more advanced ages have contributed usefully, in politics and in other arts and professions, the young aspirant for lieutenant governor declared with a straight face the other day.

And so he managed to get into print what the Democrats eagerly want the voters to remember on election day, that Sen. Wiley who got to Washington in middle age 24 years ago, is now in advanced years, as Wisconsin precedents go. This is something that Wiley's opponents want to circulate, but which Wiley's opponent does not quite dare to exploit directly and on his own account. After all, there are many voters who are as old as Wiley, or who are getting on, and who may resent any aspersions upon their age.

The Democratic strategy is obviously to have Nelson campaigning on the "issues," the Wiley votes in Washington, his legislative record in terms of things accomplished and bills passed, and the differences between Republican and Democratic outlooks on taxation, farm policy, labor, medical care and the rest.

But there is also the hope, and it is not altogether a vain one, that the veteran incumbent can be provoked into saying or doing something hurtful to himself, and this is the assignment that Carley and some of the others have willingly taken on.

OLD STYLE

In less refined jurisdictions, such a functionary is sometimes and irreverently called a hatchet man, which recalls a story about the politics of a neighboring state.

In the near-by state with a geographical situation resembling Wisconsin, a first-time aspirant for a minor office on a party ticket was assigned to stump the most remote of the outposts. Each day he was sent a speech to deliver, copies of which were diligently dispatched to the press from party headquarters. As his strictures against graft and corruption among the enemy grew more violent, he grew uncomfortable. Discomfort changed to outright fear when he got a letter one day threatening bodily harm if his charges continued.

The neophyte telephoned the party chief. "They have threatened to bump me off," he lamented. "What will I do?"

"Let them," said the boss, cheerfully. "We'll elect the rest of the ticket."

Differentiating Among Similarities Education

Certain Eskimo tribes, we are told by ethnologists, have nearly a hundred different words for "snow." We have only one in English; to us all snow is simply snow, because it plays a relatively small part in our lives.

Harris

But to the people who live in snow conditions most of the year, there are tremendous differences in the kinds of snows that fall; experience and necessity have taught them to discriminate keenly among them.

I recalled this bit of Eskimo lore during my vacation this summer in northern Wisconsin. The trees around our house there are called "evergreens" by week-end visitors; they cannot see the difference between a spruce and a balsam. All evergreens look alike to them.

If one lives there for some time, however, not only are spruces and balsams sharply differentiated — but one can also distinguish among four different kinds of spruce alone. What seem, to the untrained eye, to be similar or identical trees are seen by the educated eye as quite distinct.

A perceptive Frenchman said many years ago that "intelligence consists in the ability to tell the difference between things that seem similar, and the similarity between things that seem different. This is not a good definition of intelligence — but it is a good definition of what true education ought to be."

Retirement Plan Gives Special Break

VIA PORTER
South, two major tax laws the statute books of the States—laws which will affect millions of men, both and women,
one of the Re-Act of self-em-profession and business, beginning in 1962,
be able to get special retirement plan tax breaks for the first time.
The benefits, to be similar to the special retirement tax benefits until now limited to employees and corporation executives, will be available to millions—individuals and partners, doctors and lawyers, accountants and engineers, real estate operators and plumbers, independent salesmen and bakers, etc.

Cut Is Big
Under the second of the laws, the Revenue Act of 1962, businessmen are being handed a tax cut amounting to more than $1 billion a year. The bonanza will apply to this current calendar year of 1962 and will be available to the businessmen without any reduction in the tax rates they pay on their incomes.

For years Congress flirted with the idea of passing a law permitting tax-sheltered retirement pensions for the self-employed. By the time this last session got around to passing the law, the original proposals had been revised, refined, softened, hardened and mangled to the point where experts are just beginning to find out what was done. And even the law's most ardent supporters admit their astonishment that anything was done at all.

Almost from the day President Kennedy took office, Congress wrestled with the Revenue Act which it finally passed at the end of the session. It also revised, refined, softened, hardened and mangled the administration's original proposals so many times that here too the experts are just starting to find out what's in the

Points Submitted
In this series of eight columns beginning today, I will submit the major points in both laws which are of the most direct meaning and broad-and-butter importance to you.

To summarize at the start, here is the essence of the Retirement
Act of 1962.

If you are self-employed, you will from 1963 on be able to earmark and deduct part of your current earnings for a future retirement fund. While you are accumulating this fund, the income earned by the fund will be tax-free and your taxes will become due only when you retire and start withdrawing from your fund.

Also to summarize at the start,

Democrats Ask Labor for Emergency Aid

Seek to Bolster Final Stage of Campaign
Of John W. Reynolds

Special to the Post-Crescent MILWAUKEE — The Democratic state organization Saturday appealed to the top leadership of Wisconsin organized labor for emergency financial aid to nourish the final stage of the campaign of Atty. Gen. John W. Reynolds for the governorship.

Reynolds and Patrick J. Lucey, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, were closeted here for more than two hours Saturday afternoon with about 20 top labor union officials.

They explained that the Reynolds campaign is limping because money has been scarce to finance the promotions the party had planned but is not now able to finance. Gov. Gaylord Nelson's campaign chest, in his drive for the U.S. senatorship, is compari-tively well endowed, according to all reports. Reynolds has been complaining publicly for the last few weeks because contributions to his campaign have been skippy.

Dinner Scheduled
Lucey asked the statewide labor leaders to pledge ticket purchases for a Reynolds testimonial dinner at Green Bay on Nov. 3 at $25 a plate. The hope is to raise $10,000 at the dinner.

Incomplete financial reports have thus far been filed at Madison under the state election laws, but it has become evident that the Reynolds campaign fund is substantially less than that which is available to Nelson, his running mate.

One reason is that Nelson's friends anticipated his senate campaign and started raising money more than a year ago.
The Reynolds campaign started later.

The largest source of money thus far for Reynolds was a dinner in Milwaukee last month Gary Wilkinson, stepped into which drew more than 800 persons to hear Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy. It raised about $30,000.

night as you sleep.

Cough syrups taken at bedtime wear off during the night. Your cough may return. Wake you up.

But now, an amazing new "time" tablet does not wear off in the night. It gives continuous relief up to 12 hours. Lets you sleep.

This Duraspan "time" tablet contains the most effective non-narcotic cough suppressant known. It's actually as effective as codeine, without codeine's narcotic side effects. And the medication is released a very special way.

Duraspan's outer section dissolves fast to give a rush of medication. Then an inner section dissolves slowly, supplying continuous medication hour after hour.

RESULT: All night cough relief as you sleep. All day relief at work or school.

For coughs of colds, flu, smoking—simply take Duraspan morning and night.

Strange Noise Traced To Downtown Store By Appleton Police

Appleton police received several telephone calls about 6:15 p.m.
Saturday that a high, piercing whistle was alarming pedestrians along College Avenue. The sound seemed to be coming from one of the department stores.

The whistle was traced to a faulty boiler in the basement of the S. S. Kreske Co. Store, 110 W.
College Ave. The boiler had set off a small fire alarm whistle, Pat Bishop, assistant store manager said. He disconnected the alarm.

here are the major things the Revenue Act of 1962 does.

It gives businessmen who buy machinery, equipment and other tangible personal property for their business an entirely new tax credit which, the Treasury estimates, will create for these businessmen a $1 billion a year tax savings pot. The credit applies to all qualified purchases starting with years ending after 1961, so the tax savings will be available when businessmen file their 1962 returns.

It clamps down hard on types of expense account deductions and sets up far tougher rules for proving the expense deductions too.
There will be brand new limits on entertainment expenses, on entertainment facilities such as golf clubs and boats, on combined business-pleasure trips, on deductions for business gifts. No longer will you be able to uphold your expense account deductions with "estimates."

Penalties Imposed
It demands much more information to be reported on the payment of dividends and interest by corporations, banks, savings associations, the like. It also provides for the imposition of stiff penaltities on those who fail to heed the new reporting requirements.

And there are many other provisions in the new law. For instance, 1962 will be the last year for a special capital gains tax break for businessmen who sell depreciable personal property (such as a car, office equipment).
There are new limits on tax exemption of income earned by U.S. citizens working abroad.
Tax haven operations via foreign corporations are being restricted.
The tax advantage of certain foreign mutual funds is wiped out. And so on.

Tomorrow: How the retirement plan tax break will work for the self-employed professional or business man.

Seed for Regional Plan Unit Sown Nearly 2 Decades Ago

Twin Cities Group Saw Dream Become Reality May 1, 1956

BY REINY WESSING
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission was formally organized only six years ago, but in effect its early beginnings date back to the middle 1940s, nearly 20 years ago.

It was during World War II that a far-sighted and civic-minded engineer at the Kimberly-Clark Corp., Rudy Lotz, realized the need to plan for the future of the Fox Cities region on a large scale.

Under the leadership of Lotz discussions of "post-war planning" flourished, and the Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce joined in the fledgling project.

At the end of the war, a Twin Cities Committee for Planning was formed, with six members. Despite the enthusiasm and foresight of the 12-man committee, Frank C. (Bud) Durham, vice president of the Neenah-Menasha Co. was chairman.

When Durham died J. Morgan Wheeler of Menasha and S. F. Shattuck of Neenah were named co-chairmen of the committee. Wheeler moved to Florida when he sold the Wheeler Transportation Co. Shattuck, a former vice president of Kimberly-Clark, maintains an office in the National Manufacturers Bank of Neenah.

In 1947, the Twin City committee contacted the state planning office in Madison for ideas and advice, and was very optimistic about what could be done with planning in the Fox Cities.

Despite the enthusiasm and foresight of the 12-man committee, the response and cooperation from the two communities was discouraging. In 1954 the committee was dissolved.

It was hoped that at some future date a better way could be found to effect the planning which was so obviously needed.

Idea Fine

"People in both communities thought the idea of planning was fine, but they were more concerned with immediate problems," Shattuck recalls. "Looking ahead 20 years into the future seemed like a long way off," he said.

The committee had become convinced that nothing of importance could be accomplished until municipal officials backed their desires with their time and tax dollars.

For the next five months the planning effort was only a memory.

Then in January, 1955, John Scanlon, former mayor of Menasha, decided to take the lead in trying to stimulate new efforts.

He set up a meeting in Kaukauna, and invited the government heads from the four cities, three villages and townships in the Fox

Cities. Out of that meeting came the idea for a joint planning venture. A budget of $10,464 was adopted for the fiscal year of June, 1956 to May, 1957. In October, 1956, subsequent budgets were about $39,000.

During the remainder of 1955 and the first part of 1956 numerous meetings were held in the different communities. Outside speakers were brought in to outline and discuss the many phases of the proposed program and organization.

The Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission came into being on May 1, 1956, when nine municipalities became charter members at a meeting in Little Chute. Later the Towns of Grand Chute and Buchanan joined so that now there are 11 members.

Member communities became more active in planning and number of requests for assistance increased. Secretarial help was hired and more space acquired for the commission's office, which at that time was in Kimberly.

The commission's 1957-1958 budget grew to $16,855. Most subsequent budgets were about $39,000.

Following numerous discussions, the commission and its executive committee decided that a comprehensive plan for the region was too big a job to be done locally. It was decided to hire an outside consultant.

Firm Hired

Kenneth L. Schellie of Metropolitan Planners, Indianapolis, (now Kenneth L. Schellie and Associates) was hired by the commission after considering offers from about four planning firms. Originally Schellie was supposed to work with the regional office, and was to be paid $72,000 for the portion of the plan to be produced by his firm.

However, later it was decided that Schellie should produce the complete regional plan and take over operation of the regional office, at a three-year cost of $140,000. Another $13,514 was appropriated for operations of the commission itself and for equipment purchases for the office.

Schellie was given a three-year contract, effective Jan. 1, 1960, and ending Dec. 31, 1962.

His firm was to prepare 10 special reports, analyzing the region and giving recommendations for the future, plus a comprehensive plan for the region. One report, a refuse disposal plan, was eliminated, then reinstated as part of the report on public buildings and facilities, but now will be a separate booklet appearing as a companion to the public buildings and facilities report.

That report, another on capital improvements programs for municipalities in the region and the comprehensive development plan for the entire region remain to be delivered.

Why Risk Costly Furnace Failure? Protect Yourself This Easy Way:

Get Your FREE $5.00 Furnace Oil Service Bond Now:

Don't let a clogged-up fuel line, filter or burner nozzle cause your oil furnace to fail suddenly this winter.

Before November 30, 1962, have your tank filled with Skelly Furnace Oil with Anti-Clog SK-12 for use in your Central Heating System. When you do, your Skelly Furnace Oil Dealer will give you, absolutely free, a Furnace Oil Service Bond worth $5.00 on your first service call this winter (if you should have one).

Then, if fuel stoppage should occur due to a clogged fuel line, filter or burner nozzle anytime during the guarantee period (up to May 1, 1963) just call any reputable furnace company for service. Have the furnace man sign your bond and send it, along with your service call receipt, to Skelly Furnace Oil Bond Program, P. O. Box 436, Kansas City, Missouri. Skelly will immediately mail you a check for $5.00.

Prove to yourself that no other furnace oil can burn cleaner or give you better protection against clogging—and get bonded protection at no extra cost. Call your Skelly Furnace Oil Dealer today.

Ask Your Skelly Furnace Oil Dealer About The Skelly Budget Plan

HERE'S HOW YOU BURN OIL

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN PAY FOR SKELLY FURNACE OIL

End big winter fuel bills. Spread the cost over a full 12 months. Ask your Skelly Furnace Oil Dealer, also, about his "keep-fill" plan that saves time, trouble, and guards against condensation.

Skelly can make this amazing offer because Skelly Furnace Oil with SK-12 protects fuel tanks, keeps fuel lines, filters and nozzles clean and rust free.

Large Agency Budgets Seldom Understood by State Legislators

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON—It is a truism in state capital affairs that the legislature in its handling of the state purse-strings sees the small figures best. A big agency has better luck defending a giant appropriation than does the small one with a lean budget.

Thus the legislature last year without particular comment approved almost without comment a huge budget for the state welfare department—one that was obviously the highest on record literally, and generous in detail. It was the forest being obscured by the trees.

State mental hospital costs have risen, in dollars spent for each patient each month, by a third during the last four years, and the spiral continues upward.

The most dramatic example of cost inflation is in the new Central Colony near Madison, caring for mentally retarded children. The new hospital is designed for research and experimentation, as well as custodial care. The dollar outlay per month for each child there last year rose to the record-breaking total of $431, or nearly $100 a week.

For some reason not immediately evident, the cost inflation is not as conspicuous at the state prisons. The state reformatory's per capita monthly cost last year was about $138, which was almost exactly what was being spent per inmate four years earlier.

A water resource study committee of the legislative council continues to search, without evident result, for ways to pull together the numerous state laws and departments concerned about water conservation and regulation.

A couple of years ago there was a fair-sized lobbying effort by conservation interests to pull them together forcibly, through legislative mandate. The official agencies concerned, however, stopped the campaign and retained the status quo.

There is no reason to doubt that the division of Wisconsin state government employees and officials with regard to their partisan sympathies is not representative of the body politic of Wisconsin.

To Serve on Fund Drive

SHAWANO — The names of six area residents who will serve on the Shawano Community Hospital Building Fund Drive's Executive Committee has been made public.

They are: Howard A. Catenkamp; Mrs. John C. Goergen; Honorable Emil E. Juedes; Lester H. Labutke; Ovid B. Strommenreuther; and Walter C. Wolf.

The announcement of the members was made by the general chairman of the drive, Allan E. Peterson.

But it is becoming increasingly evident that the Democratic state administration of recent years has been more successful in rallying its sympathizers inside the state government to its campaign causes than were the Republican regimes that preceded it.

Some Republicans are now openly saying that if their party is returned to control in the capitol they will insist that their appointees responded more faithfully to their partisan needs, according to the precedents established by the Nelson regime since 1959.

Probably the most important of the appointments to state office the next governor will make will be the selection of a state insurance commissioner. The four-year term of Charles Manson of Wausau will expire early in the new year.

Not only is this one of the few state departments that is run by a single man, rather than by a commission of several or more, but the insurance department teams with new and growing regulatory problems as a result of the explosive growth of the entire underwriting business and the vast increase in sales in some of the newer lines such as health and accident insurance.

Toy Reynolds, the Broadway actor who gave up New York for the season to return to his home state to campaign for his brother John Reynolds for the governorship, is telling friends that he is enjoying his stump experiences hugely.

Brother Tom is being assigned to the smaller towns and villages of the state, while the candidate concentrates on the larger cities where the votes are more concentrated. The novelty of a successful professional actor scouring the rural precincts, for votes has brought some favorable responses, according to Democratic state headquarters.

Higher education officials of the state are quietly laying plans for the eventual linking of the several universities and college campuses through a television network.

The plan will require money, and more important, the licensing of the state for additional television frequencies. The University has already applied for a frequency at Wausau, but it must settle with a newly organized private firm which has won a tentative allocation.

As the educators see it, such a network would do more to coordinate the faculties and their efforts than anything else now available to them.

Politics Life-Long Interest to Democrat - Hopeful Reynolds

Attorney General Uses Booming Voice in Campaign for Governor

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON — The pleasantly deep voice announces to passers-by wherever they can be found: "I'm John Reynolds, and I'm running for governor. I'd appreciate your vote."

The two-time attorney general of the state is personification of the opportunities for top-flight political careers for young men in suddenly prospering political party organizations. He is at work night and day on the biggest political bid of his relatively short career as the Democratic party nominee for the governorship of Wisconsin. He is 41.

Ten years ago such a leading position in the affairs of his state was only a dream to him—although he cheerfully reports that he was always interested in politics and always intended to seek high office some day. The fact that he has risen so quickly to commanding rank in his party, however, is due to the accidents of history rather than his own design.

Reynolds joined a handful of other ambitious young politicians, most of them trained as youths in the Old Progressive Party of the LaFollettes, in an attempt to resuscitate the Democratic Party after World War II, when the LaFollette family had abandoned the losing effort to keep the third party alive.

He ran for office on the Democratic ticket in years and in situations when it was plain that there was only a negligible chance to win, as a means of strengthening the party machinery and establishing the Democratic ballot as a practical instrument in state politics.

Over a long and arduous decade the voters slowly responded. By the middle 1950's the Democrats had pulled within striking distance of the Republicans in this historically Republican state.

When William Proxmire stunned the Republicans by winning a special election for U.S. Senator in 1957, the Democrats set out to organize a stronger slate of state ticket candidates in 1958. So improved were Democratic prospects that Reynolds had a lively fight for a nomination for attorney general. But he won the nomination, and he squeezed through to election that fall.

He was re-elected narrowly in 1960, and when Gov. Nelson decided to run for U.S. senator this year Reynolds was the virtually automatic choice of the party powers for the gubernatorial nomination as the best known elected Democrat available. Moreover, he was a man who had shown enough campaign skills to be elected in difficult contests twice in succession to the key attorney general's office.

Reynolds would be described in the neighborhood language as "easy going." He rarely becomes excited. He is slow to anger. Sometimes the violent words of his press releases stand in contrast to the easy geniality of their author, as politicians, capitol officials, newspapermen and others know him.

Style Seems Strange

Sometimes also his tendency to make academic and theoretical speeches about politics and political theory seems strange to those who know his jocular style in private conversation.

Reynolds' best asset on the stump, probably, is a strong and resonant voice. Liability, noted more often because of the inevitable comparisons with several of his running-mates including Gov. Nelson, is a disposition to solemnity in formal speech. There are very few jokes in a Reynolds platform appearance.

The Democratic candidate, because of his familiar bearing and usually broad smile, is an easy man for the opposition politician to underestimate. He is a serious student of politics and strikingly well informed on the theory and practice of public administration, the scope of modern governmental problems, and the history of the political behavior of the state.

Reynolds was schooled in partisan politics as a boy when he accompanied his father and namesake, a veteran LaFollette Progressive politician, on his campaigns. His father was attorney general of the state several times. As oldsters tell it, he hoped also to run for the governorship, but with the tight discipline of the LaFollettes of those earlier times, the opportunity never came.

Reynolds is keying much of his campaign strategy to the conviction that the majority of the voters of Wisconsin who kept the LaFollettes in power for two generations remain generally liberal in their convictions. That is the reason for his repeated and violent denunciation of the "radical right," as he terms it, and the charge that the reactionary movement would seize control of the Wisconsin state government this year under the guise of the Republican state ticket.

Was Anti-Sales Tax

The Democratic nominee to the envy of other politicians of his time developed early in his career an expert command of the techniques of publicity. His first campaign for attorney general was keyed almost exclusively to the issue of the sales tax—which indignant opponents noted was wholly irrelevant to the office he sought. But there is no doubt in the minds of the men around Reynolds, or himself, that the technique accounted for his victory.

The memory of that experience

Cars Damaged At Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — Extensive damage resulted, but no one was injured in two accidents investigated by city police over the weekend.

At 12:50 a.m. Saturday police reported a car driven by Norbert W. Bangart, 41, route 1, Menasha, struck a legally parked car owned by Kenneth Roberts, 1405 Crooks Avenue. Bangart was driving south on Crooks, hit the rear end of the Roberts vehicle pushing it 60 paces onto a lawn.

At 2 p.m. Friday a car driven by Mrs. Marie Sanderfoot, 202 W. Lincoln Ave., Little Chute, struck the back end of a car driven by as well as the unyielding position of the Democratic party machine, led Reynolds into the same anti-sales tax posture this year—to the annoyance of other influential Democrats including Gov. Nelson, who felt it was a reflection on his own record which included the enactment of a partial sales tax during a financial dilemma last year.

Reynolds has been campaigning with some complaints that his effort is under-financed. His financial reports thus far show that his resources are well below those available to Gov. Nelson, running for U.S. senator.

FOUR ROSES DISTILLERS COMPANY N.Y.C. - BLENDED WHISKEY 85 PROOF - 60% GRAIN NEUTRAL SPIRITS

A penny can make your drink taste better.

No, don't add it to the drink. Add it to the price. Spend a penny more per drink for your whiskey.

And get a whiskey made from grains graded #1 and #2. (The best there are, says the government.)

A whiskey that starts out with more good character to its flavor.

And stays that way. It's blended with choice grain neutral spirits in a special way — to keep that good character alive in your drinks.

A whiskey known, in two well-known words, as Four Roses. Ice can't melt away its authority. Mix can't mix it away.

So, the surprise is not that Four Roses costs more. But that it costs so little more.

Your investment in a bottle comes to about a penny more a drink.

A better drink, that is.

'Doing Something' to Hair Is Understatement for Redhead

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sunday my widowed sister who has had lovely gray hair for at least 10 years showed up at our home for dinner — a flaming red-head. At first I thought it was a wig but she told me straight away that she had dyed it. She wanted to know how it looked so I told her I didn't like it because it didn't go with her face. Then she said, "How come you don't like dyed hair on me but you think it's just fine for your wife?" I asked her what she meant by that remark. She replied, "Vic-gina has been dyeing her hair have a large family, but the truth was I had to keep seeing her for years."

I told her I didn't believe it, so this doctor and I needed an excuse. My husband adored children and they all resembled him so this was no problem.

Six months ago the doctor died, I am heartbroken and filled with guilt. I'm sure I'd feel relieved if I could go to his widow and beg forgiveness. They say confession is good for the soul, but I'm not religious and I don't believe in prayer. Yet I MUST tell somebody. Help me, please. — PENT UP

Dear Pent: You've told me. That's enough. An earful like this could put a woman in her grave.

As for prayer, I believe in it and fervently. If you haven't tried it don't knock it.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Luka Ndinya, a Lawrence College student from Kenya, Africa, was guest speaker at the Thursday evening dinner meeting of Appleton Altrusa Club. He told of his home, family and tribe, and played and sang native songs. The student is majoring in English and plans to teach in a high school upon his return to Kenya. He was introduced by Miss Marie Biese, chairman of the International Relations committee.

Mrs. Karl Kuchenbecker presided at the business meeting. The hostess committee was composed of Mrs. George Stutz, chairman, Miss Alice Sievers, co-chairman, and Mrs. Helen Nagel, Mrs. G. H. Kisslinger and Miss Genevieve Mortel.

Homemakers Club Meets in Freedom

FREEDOM — The Silver Star Homeomink Club held its second meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Clarence Marx, Freedom. Mrs. Marx also was the project leader.

The entire club plans to attend "Needs for Modern Living" program Nov. 1 at Kaukauna High School and the fall workshop Nov. 14 at Black Creek.

The next monthly meeting is Nov. 6 at the home of Mrs. Donald Newhouse, Freedom. Mrs. Clifford Kortz will be the project leader.

Relief Corps Met

The Relief Corps met with Mrs. Eva McMurdo Wednesday evening. A social hour followed the business meeting. Mrs. Florence Hammond will be hostess for the Christmas party. The date will be announced later.

The Inside Story

Turnips, Rutabagas Add Nice Variety

BY KATHLEEN WALSH

County Home Agent

Turnip or rutabaga, which will it be? Or maybe I should say, which is it?

Mrs. Walsh

These are two different vegetables even though some think them the same. Actually there is very little difference. Either of the two will do very nicely as part of a good dinner. For all practical purposes you can identify them this way: most rutabagas are yellow-fleshed and most turnips are white-fleshed, (not always though); rutabagas are round and slightly long; turnips are round and slightly flattened on top, the rutabaga has a more solid flesh than the turnip, also it grows best where the weather is cool, while the turnip does best in the southern half of the country. As for their contribution to our diets, both provide a useful amount of vitamin C and vitamin A in addition to other vitamins and minerals. If someone is particularly fond of turnip tops, he will get a large amount of vitamins A and C and also a considerable amount of iron which he needs for building his blood supply.

Use Boiling Water

To prepare these vegetables, peel them and cut into 1/2-3/4 inch cubes. Place the cubes in a saucepan with one inch depth of boiling salted water. By starting vegetables cooking in boiling water you shorten cooking time and conserve on vitamins and minerals.

Add about one teaspoon sugar per two pounds of vegetable. Bring to the boiling point and boil three minutes. Then cover, and continue boiling twelve minutes or until tender. If you cook turnips or rutabagas uncovered for several minutes, or lift the lid several times during the cooking process, the strong gases will escape and thus the roots will have a more delicate flavor. Spices Enhance Flavor. These root vegetables can be served many ways other than cook and mashed. Try scalloped rutabagas, creamed rutabagas (or turnips) can also be used for variety. For more variety add left-over bits of meat, hard-cooked eggs or grated cheese to the cream sauce; serve them raw in a salad. You might like to try combining diced raw rutabaga, chopped green pepper and cold cooked potato with a dressing. You can enhance the flavor of these vegetables by adding spices and herbs. Basil, chili powder, chives, onion powder, poppy seed, rosemary, savory and thyme may be used with rutabagas. For turnips try allspice, basil, celery seed, dill, seed, chives, nutmeg or onion. Remember though that many spices and condiments intensify with cooking, so add them with a light touch!

Savory Mashed Rutabagas
To three cups of mashed rutabagas add:
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
2 tsp. butter
2-3 c. grated process American cheese
1 tbsp. minced onion
1/2 tsp. meat or steak sauce
Mix well and serve.

The United Church Women of Outagamie County will hold a board meeting at 3 p. m. Tuesday at All Saints Episcopal Church. Plans for the Nov. 2 World Community Day will be made.

Mrs. Sheldon Larsen and Mrs. Paul Helmrich will be auctioneers when members of E.M.B.A. Auxiliary hold a talent auction after their Thursday evening meeting at the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. Clubrooms. The event will begin at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Edward Kerschner is refreshment chairman.

Tense Nerves Block Bowels

New laxative acts on colonic muscles...de-constipates overnight.

The muscular wall of your colon contains nerves known to medicine as Auerbach's Plexus. In regular people, these nerves tell the colon muscles to propel and expel waste from the body. But tense nerves or emotional upset can block your normal bowel habits. Your colon muscle impulses are no longer strong enough to eliminate waste—which dries and shrinks, further aggravating the condition. Relief, doctors say, lies in the non-irritating, de-constipating principle of a new tablet called COLONOID. Of all leading laxatives, only COLONOID gives you its special 3-way overnight relief for tension-caused constipation.

(1) COLONOID stimulates your colonic nerve network, to further activate and regularize its muscular "movement". (2) COLONOID's unique re-bulking action helps re-tone tense colonic muscles. (3) COLONOID moistens for easy passage without pain or strain.

COLONOID relieves even chronic constipation overnight; is so gentle it was hospital-proved safe even for expectant mothers. Get COLONOID today. INTRODUCTORY SIZE 43¢.

Sheinwold Too Much Knowledge

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

One of the troubles with scientific bidding is that your partner may become confused. Another hazard is that an opponent may become confused.

South's jump to three spades was forcing to game, of course. North went to four hearts to show spade support and mild interest in a slam. North could not have a tremendous heart suit for he had opened with one notrump.

South went past game by showing the clubs, and North had a chance to show the ace of diamonds. This was enough for South. He jumped to six spades.

West opened the jack of diamonds and declarer took the ace and the top hearts to get rid of a diamond. Then he led a low club from dummy.

Fine Defense

East began a fine defense by discarding a heart instead of ruffing the club. South won with the king of clubs, led a trump to dummy's king and returned another low club.

East threw another heart, and South won with the ace of clubs. If East had ruffed either club, South would draw just one round of trumps and use dummy's other two trumps for ruffing club losers. This would enable him to make the slam.

After East refused to ruff a club with one of his worthless trumps South was doomed. When declarer gave up the third round of clubs to West, back came a trump. This left only one trump in dummy, and South eventually lost a second club trick.

West was just about to congratulate East on his magnificent restraint when East made a complaint. "All this fancy bidding is very confusing," he growled. "I thought the contract was six notrump. I wish I had known in time to ruff one of those clubs!"

Ceremony Performed At Fancher

AMHERST — St. Mary of Mount Carmel Church, Fancher, was the setting at 10 a.m. Saturday for the marriage of Miss Barbara Estell Trzebiatowski and Kenneth Konkol. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. A. J. Trzebiatowski performed the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Trzebiatowski and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Konkol, all of route 2, Amherst, are parents of the couple.

Miss Janice Konkol, a sister of the bridegroom, attended as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Carol Trzebiatowski, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Judy Konkol, the bridegroom's cousin.

The bride's brother, Charles Trzebiatowski, acted as best man. Groomsmen were Robert Konkol, a cousin of the bridegroom, and Ronald Suski, a cousin of the bride. Jerome Woyak and Gary Glodowski shared ushering duties.

Johnny's Ballroom, Stevens Point, was the setting for breakfast, dinner and dance. After a southern wedding trip, the couple will live in Amherst.

Pair Weds In Catholic Nuptial Rite

HILBERT — St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, St. John, was the setting at 10 a.m. Thursday for the marriage of Miss Phyllis Margaret Probst and Robert M. Kempen.

Leonard F. Woelfel performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Clemens Probst, route 2, Hilbert. Mrs. Leona Kempen, route 2, Hilbert, is the mother of the bridegroom.

Miss Mary Schomisch served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Karla Bahrke, Oshkosh, a cousin of the bride. Miss

Daily Question

Partner opens with one spade and the next player passes. You hold S-K-J-8 H-A-K-7 D-A-Q-4-3 C-10-4-3. What do you say?

Answer: Bid two diamonds. This is a difficult hand to bid because you have fine strength in high cards but terrible distribution. You must mark time until you find out more about your partner's hand.

Nason on Education

Word-by-Word Reading Habits Can be Problem of Mechanics

BY LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.
Professor of Education,
University of Southern California

Dear Dr. Nason: My son is a high school senior. Is there any help available to improve his very slow word-by-word reading? I feel that this is basically his learning problem.

V. G., Lafayette, Ind.

Students who read word by word have a difficult time comprehending the material they are reading. In their concentration on words, they lose the meaning of the sentences.

Whether your son's slow reading is caused by forming the words with his lips or whether it is just a habit, he can improve if he is willing to exert some effort.

Have him first decide what he is to find out by reading. Then have him read as rapidly as possible to gain the information. Then have him recite back to himself the information he has gained.

If this procedure fails to bring about improvement, he should see a reading expert.

Dear Dr. Nason:

Our 13-year-old daughter completed her freshman year in college last June. She made a C average in spite of the fact that she failed English.

She went to summer school and received B's in psychology and economics, but again failed English.

She is very ambitious, vivacious and popular. How can we help her overcome this one handicap?

K. G. Dayton, Ohio

Have your daughter take copies of the English examinations and papers she has failed to a competent English teacher. Together, they should be able to determine the nature of the failure.

Then they can work out a plan to be followed by your daughter in writing future papers. If she plans her attack, she can overcome what by now must appear to be a serious obstacle to her.

Dear Dr. Nason:

Our sixth-grade son makes satisfactory grades on spelling tests. But when he writes a test in another subject he misspells so many words that his grades on the tests are usually reduced from B's to C's. What can we do?

M. E., Arcadia, Utah

Your son obviously associates the spelling of words with their sounds. Thus, he fails to recall the correct spelling when he is writing other materials.

Have him practice handwriting, using lists of spelling words as practice material. Since he will be attempting to improve his handwriting, he will see each word as he writes it.

This association will carry over into his other writing.

It may take some time for him to improve enough to bring up his grades through this process. In the meantime have him go over his test papers before turning them in, thinking only of correct-spelling errors.

(You may obtain a copy of Dr. Nason's "Help Your Child Succeed in School" booklet by sending $1 in check or money order in writing future papers. If she

(no cash) to this newspaper.)

The island of Vieques at Puerto Rico would invade Cuba.

The Defense Department announced today that the practice landing of thousands of marines at Vieques which had been scheduled for tomorrow was cancelled. The department said that ships had been scattered by Hurricane Ella which recently passed near the exercise area but this could have been a convenient cover.

Whatever the reason it was clear that the thousands of marines and the vessels were released for other action.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger declined to elaborate on his phrase "a subject of the highest national urgency."

He said the television and radio networks had been asked to set aside a half hour for the address to the nation.

Democratic and Republican leaders in Congress were asked to report to the White House at 5 p.m. EDT.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson already was in Washington.

Survey Shows Neither Party Has Big Edge

Democratic mayor of Philadelphia.

In neighboring Ohio, Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle is regarded by most political writers participating in the survey as somewhat of an underdog against his GOP challenger, State Auditor James A. Rhodes.

Sen. Frank J. Lausche, a Democrat whose conservative leanings frequently put him out of step with the administration, looks like a sure winner.

The contest for governor of Michigan, with former automobile man George Romney making his political debut, is rated too close to call as of now. Romney is trying to unseat Democratic Gov. John B. Swainson.

An old hand at politics, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, seems to be on the road to victory. His opponent is Rep. Sidney R. Yates of Chicago.

Rockefeller Favorite

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is an odds-on favorite to win re-election in New York, a result that his admirers hope will propel him into position to capture the Republican presidential nomination in 1964.

Not only is Rockefeller picked to take the measure of his Democratic-Liberal foe Robert M. Morgenthau, but Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits also is expected to win re-election over New York lawyer James B. Donovan.

Two former cabinet members—one from the Eisenhower administration and one from the Kennedy administration—are bidding for elective office. In each case the outcome is in doubt.

Fred A. Seaton, who was Eisenhower's secretary of the interior, is running for governor of Nebraska against the Democratic incumbent, Frank B. Morrison. The battle is rated a standoff.

In Connecticut, Kennedy's former secretary of welfare, Abraham Ribicoff, is bidding for the Senate seat of retiring Republican Sen. Prescott Bush.

New Hampshire Fight

Ribicoff's opponent is Rep. Horace Seely - Brown Jr., six-term Republican congressman. Observers are inclined to give Ribicoff a slight edge.

New England's political waters shrouded Saturday-Sunday work also are being stirred by a Republican rumpus in New Hampshire. There Republican Gov. Wesley Powell, defeated for re-nomination by John Pillsbury, has thrown his support to the Democratic nominee, John W. King.

Despite New Hampshire's generally Republican ways, King is annually Republican ways. King is annually Republican ways. King is annually Republican ways.

Plane Had 'Hissing Sound' Before Girl Fell to Death

BOSTON (AP)—A hissing sound ing on the floor near the open hatch, told me to stay where I was I was terribly frightened. I thought it was a bomb."

Miss Lacy said a hissing sound was coming from the hatch long before the accident and that it had been dulled by stuffing pillow cases into the door crevices.

She said Miss deMorie was standing near the door to announce to the passengers that the plane was beginning its descent over Hartford.

In Washington, Civil Aeronautics Board investigators said the Miss deMorie aboard the plane, explosion-like noise was caused by the sudden decompression of the plane's cabin.

Edward Slattery of the CAB said "it's the same type of noise you would hear if you broke a plosion. It knocked me to the floor and tore off the lavatory door," she said.

"I started to crawl to the cabin, but the cockpit, already in place investigation.

heard the last of it. At least I hope so."

Eisenhower said it was the Democrats who first brought up foreign policy, accusing his Republican administration of drifting for eight years, and that he had responded to this in his Boston remarks.

"I do not believe we should fail to discuss things that are history," Eisenhower said. "A loyal opposition has got a perfect right to discuss it without rancor."

At the same time Eisenhower brushed aside as "none of my business" a request for comment on calls by some Democrats and Republicans for an immediate invasion of Cuba.

Of the last Cuban invasion—the April 1961 Bay of Pigs fiasco—Eisenhower said he has never expressed an opinion about it at all.

Noting it occurred three months after the Kennedy administration had taken over, Eisenhower said: "I do not know enough about its complete details to comment upon it, and so while others have, others of my party and I suppose in the future with Cuba and some of the other party have, I have personally kept still about it."

Commenting on Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, Eisenhower said: "While it is true the activities and the actions of the man began to prove his real situation and his real intentions before I left office, the fact was that it was just something a situation we were still trying to save rather by diplomatic means than anything else."

Last Tuesday, the Republican campaign high command declared that foreign policy—Cuba in particular—is "the dominant issue of the 1962 campaign."

A formal statement, issued at GOP headquarters, declared: "If we were asked to state the issue in one word that word would be Cuba—symbol of the tragic irresolution of the administration."

No Disunity on Cuba

Rep. William E. Miller, national party chairman, was joined in the statement by Sen. Barry Goldwater and Rep. Bob Wilson, chairmen of the Senate and House GOP campaign committees.

Reached Sunday night at Niagara Falls, N.Y., Miller said in a telephone interview there is no Republican disagreement over Cuba's place in the campaign.

"We feel we have a proper place in this country at this time to offer suggestions for dealing with the Cuban situation," Miller said.

try, but India by treaty handles its foreign relations and has a mission in the country to train its small military force. Sikkim is an Indian protectorate.

Was Claims Region

Years ago, Red China's Mao Tse-tung said both Bhutan and Sikkim should be a part of China by right of treaties with old Chinese empires.

One new Chinese objective appeared to be Chushul airfield, only air supply base for Indian troops facing the Chinese in the Ladakh theater of operations, 900 miles west of the Northeast Frontier area, which is near the airfield.

The Indians said fighting also continued in the Chipchap River valley of the Ladakh front.

Each side continued to accuse the other of aggression.

The U.S. State Department said in a statement Sunday "our sympathy is with India as it seeks to meet this unprincipled challenge to its national integrity."

Your Good Health Blood Transfusions Do Not End Immunity

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D. whether blood or other tissues react chemically.

Dr. Molner: What happens about immunities when you have large or frequent blood transfusions?

I had critical surgery twice in six months. My recovery has been excellent and my blood tests are good, but I seemed to have lost resistance or immunity. I wondered if the immunity factors were thinned, so I asked a good question.

— as obviously you know — that the creation of "antibodies" in the blood protect us from the invasion of many kinds of germs. This is the principle on which we base all vaccinations, whether for smallpox, whooping cough, tetanus or diphtheria.

I know that many of these immunities last a long time. Allergic vaccination gives protection for a matter of years. Flu shots are replaced more rapidly.

— how does it stick to the blood? Immunity remains for a long time. The blood is like the other cells in our body, is constantly being replaced. A blood transfusion, for example, lasts for a relatively short time, because the red cells known to survive for some three or four months, which they are discarded and new ones are formed to replace them.

Immunity remains many years as long. Why? Because immunity is created by contact with small samples of whatever we want to protect against. The small cells of our bodies.

FACSIMILE BALLOT NOTICE

STATE OF WISCONSIN

Office of County Clerk

TO THE ELECTORS OF OUTAGAMIE COUNTY:

NOTICE is hereby given that an Election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts in the County of Outagamie, on the 6th day of November, 1962, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column, together with the questions submitted to a vote, in the sample ballot below.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have indorsed thereon the name or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of that party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.

A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

OFFICIAL BALLOT

If you desire to vote for an entire party ticket for state, congressional, legislative and county offices make a cross (X) or other mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the ballot. If you desire to vote for particular persons without regard to party, mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom you desire to vote. If it be there, or write any name that you wish to vote for in the proper place.

Appleton, County To Receive Supplies For Civil Defense

CD Director Penney Issues Report on Public Shelter Plan

Thousands of dollars worth of Civil Defense supplies will be poured into Outagamie County in a matter of weeks by the Federal Government.

This was the word today from Lee E. Penney, Outagamie-Appleton Civil Defense director, who issued an initial report on the local and area public shelter program.

Cities throughout the country, large and small, are starting to qualify for the government shipments of supplies which will be stored in shelters in the city and rural areas.

The supplies, consisting of food, water, medical and radiation equipment, will be shipped to Appleton via railroad. Penney said they will be stored temporarily on county home property until distributed to the approved public shelters.

Survey Results

The first partial shelter survey results for buildings in Outagamie County were received last week by Penney. It showed there are 25 acceptable buildings that can be used for shelters from a potential of 42.

Penney said the figure represents only 36 per cent of the potential shelters originally surveyed and that remaining reports are expected in about two weeks.

Teams of architects and engineers under federal contract have surveyed public and private buildings in Outagamie county to locate acceptable shelters, Penney said.

An "acceptable shelter" was described as one that will reduce inside radiation to 1-100th or more of that outside, have capacity for at least 50 persons, and sufficient storage space for supplies.

Shelters meeting federal requirements will be stocked and marked following a written agreement between the building owner and Federal Government. Shelter-marking has already started at Green Bay where a pilot project was authorized by the Federal Government.

Each building will display a marking in a prominent place designating it as a public shelter. Penney said contracts have been signed for about half of the buildings certified as shelters. The written agreement with the building owner provides for public use of the shelter area in event of an enemy attack or other major emergency with no obligation or liability on the owner's part.

"The signing of the agreement is a patriotic action taken by the building owner to provide protection to his employees and the community," Penney said. After all results of the building survey have been compiled by federal officials, they will be forwarded to Penney. He will then announce those buildings in Appleton and surrounding Outagamie County communities that could be used as shelters.

John W. Brynes To Give Speech

Congressman Plans Major Address in Kaukauna Tuesday

Representative John W. Brynes will deliver a major political address at Kaukauna's Civic Auditorium Tuesday night, according to James Sutherland, chairman of the Outagamie County Volunteers for Brynes Committee.

The congressman will talk at 8 p.m. in a meeting open to the public. Following the session, Brynes will visit with anyone wishing to discuss current issues.

An early Associated Press report today said that Brynes was one of 17 congressmen called to Washington by President Kennedy for a high-level conference this afternoon. Nature of the talks was not revealed. However, a later story did not list Brynes among those called and the congressman's Green Bay office at 11:30 a.m. today that no such call had been received and Brynes was expected to be in Kaukauna Tuesday.

Once Postponed

Brynes' speech had originally been scheduled for earlier this month, and was to be the formal opening of his campaign for reelection in the Eighth District. It was postponed because Congress was in session at the time. The veteran congressman began his campaign for reelection last week, upon adjournment of the House of Representatives.

Tuesday night's address will cap a full day of activity in Outagamie County, during which Brynes will appear in both Kaukauna and Appleton. His schedule will include a radio interview on station WAPL, coffee at the homes of Mrs. John Dixon, Appleton, and Mrs. George Felke, Kaukauna, a luncheon in Kaukauna and a meeting with students at Appleton Senior High School, sponsored by the High School YGOP.

Alfred L. Major, at left, representative of the Chicago office of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, presents a check to Robert A. Breister, claims representative in the Appleton district office of the Social Security Administration, for a recommendation adopted by his department to improve operating procedures. Breister recommended specific correspondence to notify aged widows of benefit checks payable after the death of their husbands, eliminating the need of replying to many calls and letters of inquiry. Cites Need for Better Milk Testing Program

Firm Heading Appleton Inspection Says One Man in Charge Needed

The Appleton Board of Health dairies in the Fox River Valley was told today that it needs to area and can make some recommendations as far as Appleton is concerned," Wittwer declared. He told the board:

There is a definite need to step-up the supervision of dairy plants that serve the city. Milk dispensers in restaurants and other places should be inspected for cleanliness.

Because there is now bulk-type milk shipments, more farm inspections should be undertaken. A meeting should be held with some farmers on proper methods for cleaning and sanitizing bulk tanks.

Drive-ins and custard stands in the city of Appleton should be given routine inspections during the summer months to check all equipment used in the preparation and dispensing of food.

Swab-Testing

A swab-testing program should be undertaken in the city's 71 taverns and 25 restaurants. Utensils, glasses and other items should be tested and the results shown to the operators of the establishments.

"There are so many new phases to keep up with in the field of health and sanitation," Wittwer said. Dr. Marvin S. Kagen, city health commissioner, said that once the health department gets more personnel it will conduct swab tests.

Schaefer Asks For Parttime Assistant

Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer has requested an assistant be appointed immediately to help his office overcome a backlog of routine cases.

Schaefer today requested permission of the Outagamie County executive committee to make an appointment to last for two weeks. As soon as the backlog is cleared up, Schaefer said, he would release the assistant.

Schaefer termed the request "very special" and asked that the committee act on it immediately. Chairman Alvin Pulver said committee action probably would come sometime today.

In making the request Schaefer pointed out that he "has waited too long in seeking assistance on a permanent basis," and that he plans to seek permanent assistance in the near future.

"The city police department is expanding, the jail is going to get bigger and the sheriff's department is considering expansion," Schaefer told the committee. "and my office has been at a standstill."

Oshkosh Man Given 6 Months for Assault

OSHKOSH — Jacob Karst, 41, 752 Franklin St., Oshkosh, was sentenced to six months in the county jail this morning after pleading guilty of assault and battery on his wife. He was arraigned before Judge James V. Sitter.

Karst was arrested by Oshkosh Police Saturday morning upon a complaint from his wife. Several cases of the mumps have been reported in the city. Mrs. Burns believes Margie contracted the mumps from her 4-year-old brother, Chip, who recently recovered from them.

$200 Fine Levied In Oshkosh Decision

OSHKOSH — Donald Blackwell, 1306 Evans St., was fined $200 for being drunk and disorderly. He admitted getting into a fight with another man in front of a lower Main Street tavern Friday night.

Appleton Officials Argue Health Department Issue

Okay $36,758 Budget; 2 Jobs Remain Vacant

Mayor Clarence Mitchell and Health Commissioner Dr. Marvin S. Kagen did anything but see eye-to-eye today on how the Appleton Health department should be expanded and operated during 1963.

Differences of opinion between the two city officials were evident during a special meeting of the Board of Health at which a budget totaling $36,758 for next year was approved and sent on to the common council's finance committee.

Health Nurse

Dr. Kagen, who has been attempting to expand his undermanned department, recommended the hiring of a public health nurse at $5,580 a year and a third sanitarian at $5,640 annually, along with establishing a testing laboratory in the basement of the city hall building during the coming year.

Although making no attempt to thwart Dr. Kagen's proposed expansion program, Mayor Mitchell did make comments which indicated he thought there was a lack of organization within the health department Mitchell did not speak against the laboratory but nevertheless had nothing to say in favor of it.

Merit Raises

Dr. Kagen and Mitchell had opinion differences when it came to that portion of the budget dealing with merit raises. Dr. Kagen recommended increases for two staff members but not two others.

To this, Mayor Mitchell objected and said the other employees should be granted merit raises. Dr. Kagen said he felt such raises should go to employees who "go above and beyond the call of duty."

"After all, I am the department head and it has been regular procedure for department heads to make recommendations concerning merit raises; the other department heads have done it," Dr. Kagen declared.

"Yes, but you're only here four hours a month and I'm here all the time and know what these people are doing," Mitchell countered.

Dr. Kagen stuck to his position that the department head had the prerogative of making recommendations. Ald. R. P. Groh, a board member, agreed with him. Mayor Mitchell said the Board

Queen Gets Mumps During Homecoming

NEW LONDON — The show must go on, and Saturday night, the last night of New London homecoming activities, the 1961 Homecoming queen came to the rescue of the 1962 queen who was home with the mumps.

Margie Burns, freshman and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Burns, 326 West St., was crowned homecoming queen Thursday night by Joyce Henley, last year's queen.

Friday afternoon Margie rode in the homecoming parade. Friday night she was at the ball game and took part in the half-time ceremonies.

Saturday morning when she got up it was discovered she had the mumps. Attendance at the Saturday night dance was impossible for her.

The '61 queen reigned at the dance.

Several cases of the mumps have been reported in the city. Mrs. Burns believes Margie contracted the mumps from her 4-year-old brother, Chip, who recently recovered from them.

Miss Beverly Blazek, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blazek, 1224 W. Glendale Ave., was killed when she struck the windshield of this car, driven by John Bartmann Jr., 18, 1116 W. Spring St., Saturday night. Story on Page 1. (Appleton Police Department Photo)

State Group Calls For New Annexation Measure

Proposed Law Would Permit Land To be Added Without Usual Consent

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — A new law allowing annexation of unincorporated areas without consent of the areas involved has been called for by the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

The proposed annexation statute was part of a statement of policy for relations between local, state, and federal government, adopted at the business session at the league's Hotel Northland convention. The voice vote was unanimous.

Officers Elected

The convention also elected the league's officers to second one-year terms. They are Mayor Arnold Klentz, West Allis, president, and John N. Kramer, Fennimore City Attorney, vice-president. A record 850 delegates were registered for the convention.

The annexation law change proposed by the league will become one of its objectives in the 1963 session of the legislature. Cities and villages under a 1959 act can annex by declaration of their governing bodies, but the action must be agreed to in a referendum in the area involved.

In the part of its policy statement on urban growth, the league said orderly growth of urban areas of Wisconsin requires that residents in urban areas should be part of cities or villages which are geared to provide the services they need.

The statement strongly urges that the legislature adopt adequate annexation procedures to allow annexation to cities and villages of unincorporated areas (towns) which meet certain standards of urbanization without the possibility of absolute veto by the inhabitants or property owners living in the unincorporated fringe.

Back National Group

The League statement noted it was backing a finding of a national advisory commission on intergovernmental relations that states should provide "authorization of municipal annexation of unincorporated areas without consent of areas annexed."

The League also called for legislation to change the Municipal Labor Relations law of 1961 and to replace legal immunity protection lost in a state supreme court decision three months ago.

The league said the 1961 law which provides for fact-finding by the state employment relations board in municipal labor disputes should be "repealed or, at least, drastically amended so that good employee relations can be restored in our cities and villages."

Local governments, said the League statement, "have viewed with alarm a tendency on the part of recent state legislatures to enact law which interfere the state government into the area of municipal employer-employee relations."

Local Confusion

The policy statement said the supreme court ruling which ended the doctrine of governmental immunity from damage suits in Wisconsin has "left local governmental officials in a position of uncertainty and confusion."

The league strongly recommends that the legislature take immediate action to enact laws reinstating governmental immunity from court liability," it said.

In other parts of its statement on relations with state government, the League said: "All state programs to impose additional costs on local government should be opposed unless financed by some source other than property taxes, a review is needed of aid formulas for highways because of the importance of urban area roads; and support was pledged for state action against water pollution."

In its statement on relations with the federal government, the League called for continuation of federal appropriations for urban renewal and aids for comprehensive plans preceding renewal projects.

Slum clearance and urban renewal are of such a nature and of such great expense that total local financing of the needed programs is impossible," the league said.

More Leadership

The convention statement also asked the federal government for more leadership in civil defense. Local government stands ready to help but "an adequate civil defense program requires greater participation and leadership at the national level," it said.

The statement also asked for federal legislation to allow payments to municipalities in lieu of taxes for federal buildings and for increasing of federal grants for airports since in many instances local government is incapable of financing facilities for "air transportation to meet national needs."

Oshkosh Girl Gets 30 Days in Jail

OSHKOSH — Terry Frank, 18, 1131 W. Seventh Ave., Oshkosh, was sentenced to 30 days in jail after admitting a drunk and disorderly conduct charge.

She was arrested by Winnebago County Police Sunday night after she refused to leave a rural Winnebago man's house.

Members of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Kimberly, welcomed the new pastor at a reception Sunday. From left are Robert Buss and Clarence Ehmkke, members of the church council; the Rev. and Mrs. Frederic Kosanke, and Lloyd Miller, also a council member. The Rev. Mr. Kosanke came to Kimberly from Goodhue, Minn. (Post-Crescent Photo)

John Koopman Sings

Fine Interpretation Highlight of Concert

BY DON VORPAHL

John Koopman, Lawrence Conservatory faculty baritone, presented a mature, confident performance of appealing music last night in the season's first solo recital at Harper Hall.

Before an audience of 150, Koopman rose well above the heights of his fine recital last season, showing a definite growth in facility, and particularly, in interpretive matters.

Last night's program departed considerably from Koopman's past pursuits. The bulk of literature was essentially absent. In its place were more serious styles demanding a different kind of insight and projection. On such ground, the baritone showed himself master of the challenge and, interestingly, had no apparent loss of audience sympathy for his efforts.

Program Taxing

This program was a taxing one. His opening selections, from "Amore traditore," a secular cantata of Bach, were enough to main many a voice for an entire evening. Koopman kept at them relentlessly, yet with ease and brought them off rather handsomely. He may have conserved his voice here, but the smooth flavor he concocted was satisfying enough of itself.

In five songs of Hugo Wolf, next, he came to a pinnacle of interpretive power. Their intensity called for extreme prowess, but never permitted it to show itself through the veil of grey, dark splendor. It is a wonderful thing, when a musician reaches beyond the mechanics of vocal production to concentrate on style and content alone, and Koopman did it well.

The reflective "Michelangelo" songs especially burned with artistic flame, powerfully, quietly, always fervently. As literature and as music they are extraordinary works, and they received a just treatment.

Following a mid-concert rest, Koopman returned with a group of five French songs of the 19th and 20th centuries. Here he gave an intriguing twist to his vocal production, or at least it seemed that these new songs had a quite distinct thinness of sound, a beautiful French elegance.

Other Selections

As music, his Charpentier, Chausson, and Chabrier were some of the freshest romanticism we have heard in a long while. One had delicacy, another ease and grace, the third, frivolity each bore stylistic distinction.

To them the Lawrence baritone added a pair of Duparc songs that rivaled the Wolf pieces in drama and intensity. Throughout, they again displayed the control, the almost automatic use of fine diction and discipline that characterized this entire program.

In closing, Koopman presented a group of four songs by American composers, each piece bearing a profound text and set with extreme skill. Among the "Pilgrimage" settings of Carlisle Floyd he found two; "Man that is born of a woman," and "For I am persuaded." From David Diamond, Koopman chose two more; "The Epitaph," a wry fragment of humor put to music, and the lament "David Mourns for Absalom." His readings of these never left the path he traveled all evening; they had majesty, yet restraint and drama in abundance.

$38,700 More Asked for Neenah Parks, Recreation

Proposed Parking Area Work, Construction Cause Increase

NEENAH — An outlay expense of $38,700 in addition to the proposed $136,930 budget for operating the Neenah park and recreation program in 1963, has been submitted to the Common Council and its finance committee.

The Council and committee have not acted on the budget request as yet and are reviewing the request. The amount sought to be raised through taxation is $108,980 for the operating costs plus the $38,700 for the outlay requests.

The proposed operating budget represents an increase of $8,000 over that allowed for this year. Of the proposed budget $58,128 is for administration and operation of the recreation building and pool. $26,826 is for the various summer and winter programs and $51,984 is for the park program.

Receipts anticipated are $17,200 from the recreation building and pool, $8,737 from the various programs and $3,020 from the park operations, making total revenues expected of $26,957.

Outlay Costs

Proposed outlay expenses for Washington Park are $1,600 to develop and enlarge the parking area off Winnebago Avenue and $4,000 to repair the three existing tennis courts, construct one additional court and to extend the fence.

Placed in the outlay budget request is $8,200 for purchase of Menasha man, Ervin Weber, was land leased from the Chicago and North Western Railroad, an action authorized by the Council at Racine St. Death was attributed to natural causes according to the coroner's report.

Requested for construction of a Menasha police. Dr. George A. crushed stone walkway along the Steele, county coroner said Web-N Park Avenue curb at River or was found dead at 8:45 a.m. side Park is $300 and for extension of the road and parking area of the hotel.

Oshkosh May Get Windfall

OSC Expenditures Can Give City Credit For Urban Program

OSHKOSH — Oshkosh may end up with a credit of almost $120,000 on its proposed urban renewal program as submitted to the Housing and Home Finance Agency (HHFA) for approval.

In a report submitted by Charles Hyde, chairman of the citizens' subcommittee on urban renewal, credits for Oshkosh State College expenditures during the last five years could result in the project being completed at no expense to the city.

The estimated gross cost of redeveloping the area between the college and the Fox River is $1,626,311. The city expects to realize $447,300 from the sale of the property after redevelopment, leaving a net cost of $1,169,011.

The federal government will pay 75 per cent, or $876,759, leaving the city's share at $292,252. However, the city can receive federal credit for an educational expenditure in the redevelopment area over the last five years. During the time Oshkosh State College spent $411,586. This would give the city a credit of $119,334 which could be applied toward a future urban renewal project if another one would be undertaken.

The planning application is now being reviewed by the HHFA and has received the support of Sen. William Proxmire.

Menasha Opens Bids On New City Garage

MENASHA — Bids for construction of a new city garage will be opened by the Menasha board of public works at 4 p.m. today here at City Hall, according to Harry H. Kind, city clerk.

Estimated cost of the new 120 by 240-foot building has been set at slightly over $100,000. Another $50,000 will cover site purchase costs. Part of the cost of the project will be covered, however, by the sale of the present city garage to the Menasha Water and Light Commission for $47,500.

The new city garage will be built on a site south of Plank Road and near the present city dog pound. Housed in the new structure would be all city vehicles, including park trucks and school buses, and supplies in a storeroom managed by a storekeeper.

After bids on the new city garage have been opened late this afternoon by the board of public works, City Clerk Kind also pointed out, they will be tabulated by Bruno J. Haas, assistant city engineer. The tabulations will then be referred to the City Council for final action.

Also on today's calendar of business at City Hall is a Council committee of the whole session at 7 p.m. to review the Menasha police and fire departments' proposed budgets for 1963.

At a Council committee of the whole session at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, the Menasha library department's budget will be reviewed, while the city's park and recreation departments' budgets will be considered at 7 p.m.

Armed Pair Robs Oshkosh Grill of $15

OSHKOSH — Armed robbers held up an Oshkosh restaurant Sunday night and escaped with between $10 and $15.

Oshkosh police are pressing the search for the two men who took the money from Martha's Grill, 1132 N. Main St., shortly after 8 p.m. One of the men, described as being 6-3 tall with red blond hair, had a revolver, police were told.

John Sitkiewicz, 1018 Jackson St., Oshkosh, chef at the grill, told police the two men entered the place about 7:30 p.m. and each ordered a meal. He said that after eating the pair waited around for a few minutes and then moved to the front of the building to pay their bill.

Sitkiewicz said when he took the check the taller man said, "I'll take the money, and displayed a revolver in his right hand. Sitkiewicz told him, "Help yourself." The man then reached across the counter and scooped the money out of the till.

The second man was described as being about 5-10 and weighing 150 pounds. Both were said to be between 20 and 25 years old.

Sen. Proxmire Calls Recent Congress Session 'Good One'

OSHKOSH — Sen. William Proxmire told Oshkosh State College students this morning the just-completed session of Congress was a "good session."

The needed legislation passed, he told the students, outweighed the "bad" legislation and legislation that failed to get necessary support.

The junior senator, who is campaigning in Oshkosh on behalf of congressional candidate John Race, admitted some of the "conservative" tendencies attributed to him by a conservative organization but did not think he was "crowding" Sen. Barry Goldwater.

"I did introduce more amendments to cut spending than all other senators combined," Proxmire said, "but I did so with a scalpel and not with a meat ax."

Some of the major achievements of Congress this session, he said, were in the field of legislation to help solve unemployment, trade, federal highway program, drug control and the Peace Corps.

The failures, Proxmire listed, were the tax bill and farm program, which were passed, and the medicare program under social security which did not pass.

"The saddest failure of all was in the field of education," he commented.

He is Kenneth Robert Schuman, 352 1/2 Water St., who was fined $75 and costs of $5 on a charge of disorderly conduct. The offense occurred at 12:49 a.m. Sunday after Schuman became involved in an altercation at the police station.

Proxmire also gave his full support to the National Farm Organization withholding action but said he did not think that was the answer to the farm problem. The economic plight of the farmer is "the most shameful economic situation in America," he said.

Fine Menasha Man $80 For Scuffle With Police

MENASHA — A 21-year-old Menasha man who engaged in a scuffle with three policemen at the Menasha police station early Sunday morning, was fined a total of $80 this morning by Menasha Municipal Justice Arthur Ales.

He is Kenneth Robert Schuman, 352 1/2 Water St., who was fined $75 and costs of $5 on a charge of disorderly conduct. The offense occurred at 12:49 a.m. Sunday after Schuman became involved in an altercation at the police station.

Proxmire also gave his full support to the National Farm Organization withholding action but said he did not think that was the answer to the farm problem. The economic plight of the farmer is "the most shameful economic situation in America," he said.

Menasha Citizens Complain Of Careless Hunter Menace

MENASHA — Police departments from Neenah, Menasha and Winnebago County received numerous complaints Saturday afternoon about pheasant hunters shooting near homes and in restricted areas.

Menasha police counted 23 phone call complaints between noon and 5 p.m. Saturday in which residents complained of hunters shooting firearms.

One resident on Arthur Street said he had been washing his car and pellets kept dropping on it. Another man said he had been hit by a pellet carelessly fired by some hunter. A broken window in the Clovis-Grove School was believed to be the result of a careless hunter.

Menasha police said that hunters should make sure they are not hunting within the city or near homes or areas where children play. Neenah police added that hunters should check to see if the land they are on is restricted.

State law prohibits the careless firing of firearms and the law will be enforced, the police department warned. In cities, ordinances forbid discharging firearms and in towns, state laws on careless firing will be enforced, police warned.

Neenah Principal To Attend National Legion Boys State Conference

NEENAH — Alvin Long, principal at Neenah Junior High School, will attend Boys State, Indianapolis, Ind., next Saturday and Sunday. This annual meeting of counselors is held at the National American Legion Headquarters for adult leaders in the United States.

There will be four Badger Boys State counselors in attendance, including Long, Herbert Helble, principal of Appleton High School, and Werner Witte, vice principal of Appleton High School, from the Fox Valley area.

Three Brothers Ordered Into Court After Fight

NEENAH — Police were called at 1:02 a.m. Sunday to a tavern parking lot on S. Commercial Street to break up a fight between three brothers and an Appleton woman. The three brothers have been ordered into court on Oct. 31 on disorderly conduct charges and the woman was let off with a warning.

K-C Director to Speak At 25-Year Club Dinner

NEENAH — William J. Epps, Leander P. Events, Evermont R. Frank, Louis F. Froze, Ralph E. Grobe, Allen D. Guentzel;

Schweitzer, director of Kimberly-Clark Corp. and a member of its executive committee, will be speaker at the Quarter Century Club gathering of the corporation's General Offices Tuesday evening at North Shore Country Club.

C. G. R. Johnson, vice president and chief engineer, James J. Shipman, vice president and director of research, D. H. Keck, director of personnel, and Charles Schueppert, comptroller, will induct the new 25-year members and distribute the service pins and savings bonds to the long-service employees who are to be recognized.

Tuesday's gathering will be the first for the General Offices since the Quarter Century Club program has been revised. The corporation now continues to induct and honor the new 25-year employees but it also recognizes and honors the longer service employees, such as the 30th, 35th, 40th, 45th and 50th, with appropriate pins and bonds. As William R. Kellett, president, stated, it provides us with an opportunity to recognize significant long service anniversaries beyond 25 years.

Humorous Talk

R. V. Lloyd, manager of the Marketing Center, will be master of ceremonies for the program which also will include a humorous philosophic sketch, "Take It Easy," to be presented by William Hanson, advertising manager for Utility Tool and Body Co., Inc., of Clintonville. He is billed as the Norwegian philosopher.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Welch and Mr. and Mrs. John Simonich will be the reception committee during the 6:15 to 7 p.m. social hour.

Inductees

The new Quarter Century employees to be inducted Tuesday evening include Richard J. Appert, O. D. Bast, Richard M. Billings, Leslie L. Brackey, B. Donald Brown, William H. Burger, Nellie A. DeWolf, George W. DeYoung, Ralph F. Egan, Thad C.

McLeod Leaves School Board

Resignation Came Today; Mitchell to Name Replacement

Dr. A. Neil McLeod resigned today from the Appleton Board of Education.

Letters of resignation were received by Mayor Clarence Mitchell and Mrs. George C. Munro, board president. He gave no reason for his resignation in the letters.

"This comes as a complete surprise to me," said Mayor Mitchell. "Dr. McLeod has been a very good school board member."

Mitchell will appoint someone to fill McLeod's unexpired term.

Mrs. Munro said today, "I am sure I speak for the entire board when I say that we deeply regret Dr. McLeod's decision. He has been an excellent and devoted board member, and his wise counsel will be sorely missed."

Dr. McLeod has served on the school board since 1959. He was re-elected for a second three-year term last spring, and was chosen vice president of the present board.

His letter to Mayor Mitchell stated, "Please be assured that serving in this area of vital concern has been most rewarding to me personally. I will look forward to remaining a part of a community which continues to support a strong educational program."

The first meeting of this committee, which is supporting the Democratic nominee for Lt. Governor, will be held at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Lawrence College Union.

About 50 persons are expected to attend to make campaign plans and to hear Carley point up the issues for the remainder of the time before election day in November.

Two Hurt in Auto Accident

Two persons received minor injuries in an intersection collision involving three cars at W. Fifth and S. Locust streets about 2:17 p.m. Sunday.

James M. Derks, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Derks, and Mrs. Derks were treated and released from St. Elizabeth Hospital where they were taken by Lindy's Ambulance Service.

Mrs. Derks, 27, was driving south on S. Locust Street when she was involved in a collision with a car driven by Joseph C. Bolle, 69, route 1, Kaukauna, going east on W. Fifth Street.

Mrs. Derks' car glanced off the Bolle vehicle and hit a parked car on S. Locust Street owned by LaVada A. Williamson, 26, 603 Locust St.

Rural Alma Boy Hunting Victim

An eight year old Buffalo County boy was wounded fatally Saturday as the small game hunting season opened throughout the state.

Ronald Oesau, of rural Alma, was shot in the chest while squirrel hunting near his home. He died a short time after the accident.

Authorities said that Ronald was hunting with his brother, Randy, 6, his father, William, and Donald Neis of Racine, when a shot apparently ricocheted and struck him. They said they did not know who fired the shot.

Tipsy Driver Fined $200

Thomas Melberg, 29, Arrested Friday; License Revoked

Thomas A. Melberg, 29, 404 Broad St., Menasha, today pleaded guilty of driving while intoxicated and was fined $200 and costs when he appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

He was arrested at 11 p.m. Friday by state traffic police, who spotted him driving erratically on U.S. 45 about one mile east of County Trunk M.

Melberg was taken to Outagamie County jail, where he was tested on the drunkometer and registered .18. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication.

His driver's license was revoked for one year.

Rain, Low Temperatures Hit State

A big low pressure area moved down from Canada, dumping rain on all of Wisconsin Sunday night and today.

The rainfall began in the extreme northwestern part of the state early Sunday night and spread across the state during the night. By 6 a.m. today Superior-Duluth had received one quarter of an inch, Park Falls had .15 inch, Green Bay .12, Wausau .11, Eau Claire .10, Madison .04 and Milwaukee, La Crosse and Racine .02.

Temperature maximums Sunday ranged from 67 at Lone Rock to 53 at Superior. Generally, they were near or slightly above normal.

During the night, Milwaukee recorded 37 degrees, with other lows in the state ranging up to Beloit's 46.

Rain continued throughout most of Wisconsin at mid-morning today.

of Health had the right to overrule Dr. Kagen on the subject if it wished to do so. Mitchell at first wanted the board to put the merit increases for all health department staff members in the budget but it was finally agreed by all concerned that the matter be referred to the council's personnel committee for study.

Dr. Kagen said the Appleton Health department needed to expand its services because of the needs in the community. "We are going to have to enter into housing to prevent future slums," Dr. Kagen warned.

"We feel our health program has been lacking," Dr. Kagen said, and he blamed this on the fact that the department was not geared manpower-wise to cope with the daily problems that exist here.

"Without having our own department laboratory, we have to eliminate services," Dr. Kagen said in pushing for a $2,000 appropriation for lab equipment. He said it was planned to set up the lab in the basement room of the city hall formerly occupied by the blood bank.

Equipment Present Mayor Mitchell told Dr. Kagen that at one time the health department had laboratory equipment at the city hall but it was dismantled about two years ago. "The lab is laying up in the attic right now," Mitchell said. He questioned if $2,000 was needed if the old equipment was put back into use.

Dr. Kagen explained that some of the equipment that had been stored was obsolete. "I've been here three years and there was never any laboratory in operation although I would have liked one," Dr. Kagen said. He noted that lack of a trained technician made it impossible to operate a lab. However, Dr. Kagen said a sanitarian he hopes to hire next month to fill a vacancy would also be in charge of the laboratory as the man has the necessary training.

Contract Split Mayor Mitchell felt strongly that Dairilab Service of Manitowoc should get the annual contract for conducting the city's grade A milk inspection program, and on that subject Dr. Kagen disagreed. He felt such a service should be performed within the health department. The Board of Health went along with the mayor and recommended that the firm do the work for $4,800 a year.

Dr. Kagen had listed $4,000 in the budget to have the water department do the testing. Dr. Kagen envisioned that eventually, as the manpower became available, the health department would perform many services instead of contracting them out.

"Our primary concern is having an adequate, safe water supply; a safe and adequate sewerage system; a safe milk and food supply system, and a health environment," Dr. Kagen said in his report to the board.

"Money is required in order to purchase the services of trained individuals to carry out these functions," Dr. Kagen added.

"We are also deeply concerned with the distribution of medical services to our citizens," Dr. Kagen added. "Health education and public health nursing help in increasing the health and lowering the morbidity and mortality statistics."

Dr. Kagen said: "The areas in which nothing positive has been undertaken because of lack of personnel include those dealing with housing code enforcement, public buildings, industrial health, public health education, radiological health, food handlers schools, and insect and rodent control."

The Appleton Health department has no registered nurse.

GOOD DEAL for MANY FAMILIES!

The idea of having one life insurance policy cover the whole family caught on fast following the introduction of a few years ago. It is an easy solution to the problem of financial security for many families. New England Life's Family Plan is especially attractive because it has no restriction, as some other plans do, on the amount of insurance available to the father. We'll be glad to explain this and the other advantages you get in choosing the "Better Life" contract, offering the finest combination of guaranteed benefits at any price.

Giant Defense Intercepts Two Passes and Blocks Punt, Field Goal

NEW YORK (AP)—The aroused New York Giant defense harried Detroit Lions, intercepted two passes and blocked a punt and field goal from Plum to Cogdill at 3:18 of attempt Sunday, upsetting the Detroit Lions 17-14 on a 9-yard field goal by Don Chandler.

With a tie hanging in the balance, Wayne Walker attempted a 53-yard field goal for Detroit with 1 minute, 37 seconds to go in the final period. Dick Lynch blocked, and Dick (Night Train) Lane. The kick into defensive tackle did not return to action in the Rosey Grier and the Giants were home free before a roaring sell-out crowd of 62,856.

Taylor Gains 160 Yards Against 49ers

BY ART DALEY
Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Don't step on the Packers... especially when they're out of bounds!

The 49ers, with a 6-0 lead, tried it on Willie Wood and the Packers, apparently riled up, went on a scoring rampage that produced a well-earned, 31 to 13 victory in County Stadium Sunday afternoon.

Outplayed in the first 25 minutes, the Packers came from behind twice to score their sixth straight league triumph and thoroughly thrill a standing room crowd of 46,010.

The Bays thus preserved their undefeated status and now head for Baltimore where they'll meet the Colts next Sunday. Green Bay gained a 2-game lead on the Lions and the Bears, in the Western Division since the Lions lost to the Giants. The Bears, who beat the Colts, and Lions each have 4-2 records.

Run Off 37 Plays

The 49ers started off like they didn't want the Packers to have the football. From the opening kickoff until about the 10-minute mark in the second quarter, the 49ers ran off 37 plays against only eight for the Bays.

San Francisco, during this possession period, grabbed a 6-0 lead on 31 and 13-yard field goals by Tommy Davis. The 49ers were on their way to another score when Wood intercepted a John Brodie pass, ran out of bounds and promptly got mangled under 49er feet.

A fight almost broke out and from then on the Packers were murder. They scored the next four times they got their hands on the ball. They reeled off 48 plays against the 49ers' 23, scored four touchdowns and a field goal and won going away.

The Bays scored 10 points in 1 minute and 37 seconds just before the half—on a 14-yard TD run by Tom Moore and a 27-yard field goal by Jerry Kramer—for a 10-6 halftime edge.

Abe Woodson shot the 49ers back into the lead, 13-10, with a beautiful 85-yard return of a 62-yard Boyd Dowler punt early in the third quarter.

Shoe-String Catch

Jim Taylor, who gritted the collective teeth of this crowd with his fierce running, bolted for 17 and 25-yard TDs in less than three minutes of the third period and the Bays were out in front, 24-13.

Wade Rallies Bears to 35-15 Win Over Colts

Chicago Quarterback Completes 8 of 11 In Second Half

BY JOE MOOSHL
CHICAGO (AP)—Quarterback Bill Wade came up with a hot hand in the second half Sunday and passed the Chicago Bears to a 35-15 victory over the Baltimore Colts in a National Football League game.

Completing only 5 of 15 attempts in a first half, in which two of the tosses were intercepted, Wade began firing strikes in the second half and finished the day completing 13 of 26 attempts for 318 yards and three touchdowns.

The Bear forward wall put on a tremendous rush against quarterback Johnny Unitas but the Colt passing ace still managed a pair of touchdown passes to Johnny Orr which helped Baltimore grab a 15-14 lead after three quarters.

On First Play

On the first play of the final period, Joe Marconi pounded up the middle for five yards and a touchdown to put the Bears ahead to stay. The next time the Bears took possession, Wade threw a 49-yard pass to Ron Bull and followed with a 15-yard toss to Ditka, setting up a one-yard Marconi touchdown plunge.

Minutes later the Bears wrapped up their fourth victory in six games when Bill George intercepted a Unitas pass and on the first play from scrimmage Wade and Johnny Morris combined for 318 yards and three touchdowns.

Moore Lauds Blockers, Takes Quiet Pleasure Over His 84 Yards

Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Retiring Tom Moore, a southern gentleman who bolted from the wings to center stage here Sunday with admirable skill and force, transferred tribute to his colleagues with characteristic grace.

Moore, who temporarily succeeded to Paul Hornung's voluminous mantle when No. 5 was injured at Minnesota last week, then sat out the second half with a shoulder hurt of his own, insisted, "I had real good blocking—I got into the secondary a bunch of times without getting hit. That was the main thing."

The mild-mannered Goodlettsville, Tenn., native, who sparked the Packers' resurgence from a 6-0 deficit with a 14-yard scoring sortie against San Francisco's stunned 49ers in the second quarter, took quiet pleasure in his 84-yard contribution to the winning (31-13) Green Bay cause, however.

"It is satisfying," he admitted, "because I haven't had too much chance to play in my three years here." He added with a shy grin, "I'm glad I didn't mess up, anyway."

Wrist Feels Good

Had his left wrist, an almost chronic problem since it was injured in 1961, given him any trouble? "No, it feels real good now," Tom reported. "I had to tape it but I didn't feel anything. And I got used to carrying the ball in my right hand last year, so it doesn't make any difference."

Moore was sporting, however, a dark bruise on his right eyelid, which had just been checked by Dr. E. S. Bruskay, as a souvenir

49ers' Red Hickey Says He Thought Ball Control Would Beat Packers

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Fight fire with fire?

Just such strategy went awry for San Francisco's subdued 49ers, who strove to frustrate the Packers' justly-famed penchant for ball control with the very same weapon, in sun-kissed County Stadium Sunday afternoon.

Delivering himself of an eloquent sigh, 49ers Coach Howard (Red) Hickey admitted as much final accounting, Hickey felt, "If while conducting a somber post-mortem in a corner of the San Francisco dressing room."

"That was our plan," Red said. "We know how strong they are offensively so we figured we'd try to keep the ball. We thought a bit we could control it—and we did, but we couldn't go into the end zone."

Asserting it had been "a good said," "We were moving in there ball game there for a while," again, right after those first two Hickey simultaneously noted with drives," Hickey noted, "That hurt obvious sincerity, "I sure hated very much."

to lose but you have to give the Did he attribute the 49ers' setbacks a lot of credit? They're a one-half offensive problems to fine ball club."

Praises Effort

Hickey, whose hunches were the last to vanquish the world much," Red declared. "But of champions (22-21) on the West coast, as you get farther behind, Coast last December) had no your game changes."

'Taylor's a Hard Man to Stop'

When you're three touchdowns behind, you have to throw the ball, and, of course, we had a couple of interceptions in the second half that really hurt."

All of which brought the red-head back to his original premise. "Anybody who is going to beat this club has to keep the ball away from them. They're too strong."

"They're certainly in a good position," he further volunteered, "with Detroit getting beat today."

Strange things happen in this game, though. Right now, they look unbeatable, but other teams have, too. I remember Baltimore was two games ahead with five to play a few years ago. We beat them and they never won another game."

"Good as they are, you don't

Cowboys Score 42-17 Win Over Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys rode on the passing arm of little Eddie LeBaron and the receiving of Frank Clarke Sunday for a 42-17 upset victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

LeBaron, the leading passer in the National Football League, fired five touchdown passes, three of them to Clarke for the Dallas ends' 9th, 10th and 11th of the season.

East Jayvees Win, 20-13, Over Terrors

The Green Bay East junior varsity scored a touchdown with about 3 minutes left in the game for a 20-13 victory over Appleton's Jayvees Saturday morning.

Three penalties, two for 15 yards each, helped East in the final drive.

The loss gives Appleton a 1-3-1 record for the season. The Terrors will entertain Oshkosh Saturday.

East scored touchdowns in the first and second period to hold a 13-0 halftime lead. The Terrors came back and Tom Feolter scored on a 72-yard end run in the third quarter. The point try failed. Later in the same period, Mark Tepper scored on a 3-yard blast and Dick Moen booted the point to tie the game.

Feolter and Tepper handled most of the running duties for the Terrors, and lineman Ken Eviszior turned in an outstanding game.

Small-Game Hunters Enjoy Moderate Success, CD Says

MADISON (AP) — The Wisconsin Conservation Department reported Saturday night that small game hunters enjoyed moderate success opening day.

The pheasant kill ranged from one bird for every two hunters to one for every three. The pressure at the state hunting grounds was taken in most areas of the state, starting at noon Saturday. The small game season for some species opened in the northern section on Oct. 1.

James Taylor, director of the department's public relations staff, said that conditions were good in many southern areas for hunters who had dogs. An overnight and early morning rain cut down the noise in corn fields and Winnabago hunting grounds the bag was about one bird for every three hunters. In Vernon County 256 hunters got 94 pheasants. In Waukesha County 143 hunters reported 60 birds. The Dane County kill was reported at 99 birds by 148 hunters. In Rock there were 82 pheasants shot by 123 hunters and in Racine County 88 hunters bagged 24 birds.

Baltimore jumped to a 6-0 lead by taking the opening kickoff and driving 73 yards for a touchdown with Unitas throwing to Orr for the final eight yards. The try for the extra point by Dick Bielski was blocked by Larry Morris.

John Pelitton intercepted a Unitas pass in the second quarter, and returned 24 yards to the Colts 17. Three plays later Wade hit Rick Casares with a 12-yard touchdown pass.

The Bears made it 14-6 in the opening minutes of the second half with Wade throwing a 69-yard touchdown pass to Dika Baltimore picked up two points on a safety when Billy Martin fumbled the end zone by Bill Saul.

These two points loomed big when Unitas hit Orr with an 89-yard touchdown pass to put the Colts ahead 15-14.

Vikings Surprise Los Angeles, 38-14

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Quarterback Fran Tarkenton and the fired-up Minnesota Vikings broke out of their cellar-dwelling tie with Los Angeles in the National Football League Sunday, scoring the Rams with 31 points in the first half and going on to win 38-14.

Tarkenton threw three touchdown passes and set up another with a 31-yard key run to the Rams 5 as the Rams lost their sixth straight game as a Western Division tenant of the NFL.

The Rams went into the game before 33,071 in Memorial Coliseum favored by 10 points. But Tarkenton quickly dispelled such an illusion as the Vikings scored four touchdowns and a field goal in the first two periods.

The Rams came back with spirit in the third quarter, held Minnesota scoreless and penetrated for two touchdowns, the first on a 43-yard pass from quarterback Zeke Bratkowski to Duane Allen.

The second Ram touchdown was set up when Tarkenton was hit and fumbled on the Viking nine. Dick Bass, with plunges of 4 and 5 yards, scored.

Minnesota took the opening kickoff and swept 67 yards, including an exchange of fumbles, with Tarkenton hitting Doug Mayberry with a 13-yard scoring strike.

Within two minutes, Minnesota scored again after the Vikings intercepted a pass thrown by the harassed Bratkowski. Seven plays and 56 yards later, Tarkenton threw 15 yards to Charley Ferguson for a touchdown.

Tarkenton made a 31-yard dash down the sideline to the 5 and Mayberry added a third touchdown.

Billy Butler intercepted a Bratkowski pass and ran it back 39 yards for a touchdown, and Jim Christopherson wound up the first half scoring with a 32-yard field goal.

In the fourth quarter, Tarkenton threw a 25-yard scoring pass to Tom Mason, to end the scoring. The Vikings gained 430 yards on the ground and in the air, while the Rams had a total of 201—only 41 on the ground.

Packers Rally to Whip Good Blocking 49ers, Increase Lead Praised by Tom Moore

Ron Kramer's shoe-string catch of a 9-yard Bart Starr pass for a touchdown in the fourth quarter set the final count at 31-13.

Taylor wound up with 160 yards in 16 carries — four yards less than he crunched for against the Vikings a week ago. Jim now has 742 yards in six games.

Moore, starting in place of the injured Paul Hornung, moved 14 times for 84 yards and had an 18-yard carry nullified by penalty.

This was among the runnings games on record — and as a result one of the shortest at 2 hours and 7 minutes. The two clubs rushed 70 times and hurled only 27 passes.

Starr settled for one dozen passes and completed 10 for an amazing 83 per cent and 107 yards and one TD. Brodie tried 15 and completed six for only 41 yards and had three intercepted — by Wood, Hank Gremminger and Herb Adderley.

The Packers dominated the second half — not to mention the last few minutes of the first half. They rushed for 54 yards in the first half and 197 in the second. The 49ers, on the other hand, had 131 yards rushing in the first half and just 32 in the second.

The Packer defense, nicked for three touchdowns by the Vikings, permitted the first field goals of the year — and, for the love of mud, who are you going to charge Woodson's runback to? Anyway, the Packers still have permitted just one TD a game thus far.

Dowler got off a 75-yard punt (which tied his own best) when the 49ers were at their friskiest — in the first period. His next was a 51-yarder to Woodson who returned six yards before running into Bob Skoronski. And the final was the 62-yard job Woodson returned for six.

The 49ers took the opening kickoff and kept the ball almost 10 minutes (9:56) on 16 plays. They covered 51 yards and closed with Davis kicking a 31-yard field goal.

J. D. Smith, who finished with 119 yards in 26 carries, and Bill Kilmer did most of the running, and Brodie completed three short passes.

The field goal fovee was a 10-yard loss for Kilmer on an attempted pass, with Hank Jordan, Bill Quinlan and Ray Nitschke cornering him.

The Packers had to give up the ball right away, chiefly because Matt Hazeltine hurled Starr for a 10-yard loss trying to pass.

The 49ers went off to the races again — right into the second period. Smith and Kilmer alternated running and finally, Rob Galters came forth when Kilmer was hurt. The 49ers ran 14 straight running plays, covering 80 yards. With third and four on the Packer 6, Brodie's pass was almost intercepted by Wood, and Davis settled for a field goal from the 13.

Can't Budge

Again the Packers couldn't budge and the 49ers started from their own 28. A 42-yard interference penalty on Adderley put the 49ers in position, but Wood broke that with his interception. The 49ers were nicked 15 yards for jumping on Wood, and the Packers were on their way.

The Packers, with the offensive line toughening up, moved 61 yards in six plays. Taylor led off with 18 up the middle and Starr hurried to R. Kramer for 16 to the 27. Moore and Taylor picked up 13 to the 14 and then Moore, on a reverse behind blocking by Fuzz Thurston and Starr, scooted 14 yards for the TD. J. Kramer, who finished with seven points, booted the first of four conversions as the Bays went ahead.

The defense moved Brodie back 14 yards in two plays and Starr, fighting the clock, completed four straight passes — to Taylor for 1 yard, R. Kramer for 22 (on which he hauled Kimbrough 8 yards to the sidelines to kill the clock), Taylor for 5 and Max McGee for 5. With 11 seconds left, J. Kramer hit the field goal from the 27 for 10-0.

"Jim Taylor (hurt on his final ball-carrying attempt of a big afternoon) is all right," Vince informed. "Boyd Dowler's all right, too. He just got stepped on."

Kicking Improved

Jerry Kramer's place kicking (in the absence of sidelined Paul Hornung) had appeared improved, scribe asked. "I think so. It's a tough team to play-against they throw a bunch of formations at you."

Turning his attention elsewhere, the Packer chief said, "We got through without an injury. I think. This he obviously found heartening in the wake of the pack-bruising weekend at Minneapolis, where five casualties had been sustained seven days earlier.

Bobby Bragan, the Milwaukee Braves' new manager, is fast finding a home away from home, he confided in the press box. "I running up four first downs on saw my first Big Ten game at Madison yesterday," he said. "It wasn't the game — the Badgers crushed Iowa, 42-14, that impressed me so much — it was the warmth of the people. I felt like I was back home in Texas."

concede 'em the pennant, yet," Hickey concluded. "They have a long way to go."

Ball control, Vince Lombardi also observed, had been Packer problem—for a time.

"We had the ball just three plays (a total of 2 minutes and 16 seconds) in the first quarter," he pointed out. "They played a little different defense in the beginning and it upset us a little bit."

This problem, he revealed, had been solved "on the sidelines" before the first half ended.

What of those early defensive woes? "Our defensive men were standing up in there and the 49ers backs were running underneath them," Lombardi responded. "And they were grabbing instead of tackling."

Did he feel, then, the defense had been up to par? A Milwaukee scribe asked. "I think so. It's a tough team to play-against they throw a bunch of formations at you."

tered warrior, rampant Jim Taylor, confessed with a sly grin, the 49ers' J. D. Smith, (runnerup to Taylor in the National Football League's ground gaining race) "got me rolling. He was breaking through there for 6 and 8 yards at a crack."

The runaway LSU alumnus, bearing over a second straight 160-yard day, added by way of explanation for his spectacular surge, "I had real good blocking when we were hitting quick up the middle and real good blocking out of our ends and flankers, too."

Had he found the 49er defense tougher than the others he had encountered. "No," was the forthright reply. "They were fairly loose in there. You could get through on that quick stuff."

No, he added, he hadn't been roughed up. "They just hit real hard. When I got stepped on out of bounds there in the fourth quarter, it wasn't an unfair play, just a lot of pursuit."

Still backing from a cough Taylor imparted, "I hope to get over this cold and sinus — I get tired out there, run out of breath. One of these days (and he had to smile at this himself) I hope to be at full strength."

Hank Gremminger, whose dazzling third quarter interception had led to the Packer's getaway touchdown (24-13) explained, "Brodie threw a similar pass to Johnson (Jimmy) earlier. I saw him coming across, Herb (Adderley) hollered at me — it's a signal we have — and I ran in on him."

Any cinder burns? Burly Ron Kramer was asked. Kramer, who had dived into the Braves' warning path to nail a fourth down touchdown pass from Bart Starr in the end zone, chuckled and replied, "No, but I got a lot of it in my helmet, I'll tell you."

Informed it had appeared an "impossible" catch from the press box, Kramer said, "The only way to catch one like that is to keep your hands under it. You just have to keep trying for 'em — sometimes you're going to catch 'em, sometimes you don't."

I can tell you one thing for sure — that was a hell of a team effort. Everybody hung in there. This is the tremendous thing about this team. There are so many individuals who have a lot of ability and everybody plays together. I think everybody feels the same way."

Denver Rallies for AFL Gene Mauch Named NL's Top Manager

Texans Win on 42-Yard Field Goal In Last 51 Seconds

BY JACK CLARY

Anyone who has been waiting for the Denver Broncos to fade from the American Football League's Western Division race has been wasting his time. The rejuvenated Broncos are in it to stay, and they're evidently not settling for anything less than first place.

Denver held a one-half game lead over the Dallas Texans in the Western Division race today after Sunday's come-from-behind 20-10 victory over two-time AFL champion Houston.

These were the only scheduled Sunday games, after Buffalo edged Oakland 14-6 Saturday.

Once more it was old pro Frank Tripucka at the controls for the Broncos, now 6-1 at the season's half way mark. Behind 10-6 going into the final period, the 14-year pro veteran teamed with AFL scoring leader Gene Mingo to get the Broncos in front to stay.

Mingo caught one pass for 19 yards, then sped to the Houston

3-yard line on a 29-yard run to set up Tripucka's TD toss to Bob Scarpitto for the clincher. Donnie Stone added the final TD on a 20-yard run later in the period.

George Blanda had kicked a field goal and engineered a 90-yard drive, capped by Billy Cannon's 2-yard touchdown plunge to put the Oilers ahead. This overcame a pair of field goals by Mingo in the first half.

Brooker, a rookie from Alabama, helped cap another powerful performance by quarterback Len Dawson and halfback Abner Haynes. Dawson passed 78 yards to Haynes for the Texans' first score, then the former North State star went over from the one-yard line for another TD.

Haynes touched off some late-game brawling. He was involved in an altercation with Titans' linebacker Jerry Fields after being driven out of bounds and was put out of the game. With only 34 seconds left, another battle broke out but was quickly subdued.

Moyer Decisions

Joey Giambra

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Portland's Denny Moyer reigns today as the first champion of the World Boxing Association's junior middleweight division.

He won the crown Saturday night with a unanimous 15-round of 30 passes for 177 yards and one decision over veteran Joey Giambra. He now has completed his first season in a fast-paced 61 of 90 attempts, for 811 yards and eight touchdowns for the season.

The gate was reported at $9,500 — not enough to cover the $6,000 master in Big Ten circles Saturday. Moyer weighed 153. Giambra weighed 154.

Ninowski Tosses 3 Touchdown Passes as Browns Thump Cards

Cleveland Builds Up Big Lead in Posting 34-7 Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jim Ninowski unwound the Cleveland Browns offense with three touchdown passes as the Browns got back into the Eastern Division race with a 34-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a National Football League game Sunday.

Ninowski, having one of his best days with the Browns, set up another touchdown and two field goals with his passes as he completed 19 of 29 tosses for 339 yards.

The 34 points were the most Cleveland has scored in a game this year and the first time it has managed more than two touchdowns in a game.

The victory moved Cleveland into a tie for fourth place in the division with a 3-3 mark. St. Louis is now 1-4-1.

Ninowski, who had hit less than 50 per cent of his passes before Sunday, connected with John Brewer for 37 yards, Jimmy Brown for five yards and Ray Renfro for 38 yards on his scoring tosses.

Cleveland wrapped up the contest in the first half as it completely dominated play for a 20-0 lead. The Browns scored four of the six times they had the ball in the first half while holding the Cardinals to a meager nine net yards.

The Browns drove 67 and 37 yards the first two times they got the ball to set up two field goals and lost 80 and played better than .500 ball after the first All-Star break.

The Phils finished eighth and last in Mauch's first two seasons. In 1961, the team lost a record 23 straight games and a total of 107. Even with the 10-team expansion, Philadelphia didn't figure to finish higher than eighth in 1962.

But the Phils' youth program blossomed behind Mauch's inspirational leadership. Pitchers Art Mahaffey, Dennis Bennett, Chris Short, Dallas Green and Jack Hamilton all looked promising, and durable Jack Baldschun was a bullpen stalwart.

Don demeter, Tony Gonzalez and Johnny Callison formed a .300 hitting outfield while shortstop Ruben Amaro and catcher Clay Dalrymple continued to show signs of developing.

Hornung to Become 'Fourple Threat,' Says Packers' Max McGee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Green Bay Packer halfback Paul Hornung, the National Football scoring king, missed Sunday's 31-13 on the last play of the half Khayat booted a field goal.

Mitchell's 74-yard kickoff return followed by an 18-yard pass from Snead to Bob Anderson. It set up Khayat's third period field goal. Then, after Clarence Peaks dashed 48 yards and Jurgensen passed to McDonald 13 for a touchdown that made it 20-14.

Snead directed the Skins 60 yards in three plays for the clincher, a 29-yarder to Mitchell.

49ers, but he didn't miss the dressingroom wisecracking. "When he comes back, he's going to play defense," declared Max McGee, who rooms with Hornung, sidelined with a twisted

Wildcats Pass Supreme Test; Now It's Wisconsin's Turn

BY JOE MOOSHL

Associated Press Sports Writer

Northwestern passed the supreme test and now it's Wisconsin's turn.

These two teams, rated no better than darkhorses in pre-season, suddenly found themselves in a national prominence and ranking choices to win the conference title and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

Northwestern proved itself to be a great team by defeating Ohio State 18-14. The Wildcats not only came off a 14-0 deficit but defeated the defending champion Buckeyes at Ohio State and before a homecoming crowd.

Wisconsin, having manhandled Iowa 42-14, plays at Ohio State Saturday and the Badgers could not run into the Buckeyes at a more inopportune time.

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

NEVER TRY TO CHANGE PEOPLE! RIGHT? WRONG?

Right or at least we should recognize how serious it is. Any real change may involve a shift in a person's whole attitude toward life. It may mean a break with his family, his friends and in some instances his whole culture. Small changes may be harmless or beneficial, but basic changes should be a matter for experts, such as psychiatrists or other specially trained persons.

2 Can we teach our children to stop and think?

Yes _____ No _____

We can teach some children to do so. With others it is more difficult. We knew a fifteen-year-old who was always in trouble because he was so impulsive. In the course of one summer, he almost was killed by running in front of a train running out in the street, barely missing a truck and running off a dock. He was underwater for some time but was rescued and brought back to life. In this case, the assistance of a child guidance expert seemed to be called for.

Impulsiveness in children is gone into further in the common sense booklet, "Your Child's Emotional Health." To get your copy, send 25c and your name and address to this column care of this newspaper.

CBS Theater To Dramatize Berlin Tunnel

Plans for On-Spot Films Dropped After Official 'Nudge'

NEW YORK (AP)—Amid the international hullabaloo over NBC's plans to show a film about a Berlin escape tunnel, CBS (which dropped its show on the same subject after a nudge from the State Department) can feel a little smug.

But Robert E. Costello, producer of CBS' "Circle Theater," now in its sixth season, is feeling vindicated. He is preparing a "dramatized documentary" on tunnel escapes from East Berlin for broadcast Nov. 7, and nobody has any objections to a fictional treatment of an explosive, delicate subject.

The producer has in recent seasons been growing increasingly resolute about the way CBS treated the program.

"Several years ago, before CBS plunged into night-time public affairs shows—before the Federal Communications Commission became so interested in public affairs shows—the network seemed thrilled with what we were doing, let us alone and permitted us to do what we wanted."

This halcyon period came to an end when CBS took away Douglas Edwards, a staff news reporter who had been doing the narration on the shows, on the ground, Costello said, that the network news department had no control over the content of the show.

"Then the squeeze started," he continued. "On several occasions we were told we couldn't use a person on our show—we wanted Adlai Stevenson to talk about slavery under communism for one show. We couldn't. When we wanted to do a story about corruption in one particular city police department, we found ourselves harassed and hamstrung in a vague area of program practices."

Circle Theatre's problem has many facets. First, the show is the product of an outside pack, after Talent Associates. Most important it is in programming never land-based on truth but often dramatized with considerable license to cover a lot of ground and to make an entertaining story.

'Two for the Seesaw' Remade Into Movie

Shirley MacLaine, Robert Mitchum Play Lead Roles in Film Version

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — On the stage "Two for the Seesaw" was a duet for actor and actress written by a poet of rare insight, William Gibson.

As written for the screen by Isobel Lennart, "Two for the Seesaw" lacks some of its original poetic quality. But it remains a remarkably human love story about real people, and you don't find many such vehicles nowadays.

Robert Wise, a Winchester, Ind. boy with a sure ear for the New York idiom ("West Side Story"), faced some problems in directing "Seesaw."

The stage version had been played in two shabby apartments, side by side. The entire original cast consisted of Anne Bancroft as the warm-hearted pixy Gittel Mosca, and Henry Fonda as Jerry Ryan, the displaced Omaha lawyer.

Obviously two players couldn't occupy the entire running time on the screen, the locales were broadened to a dentist's office, a Chinese restaurant, a Greenwich Village party, an attorney's office, an ambulance, a dance studio loft and a few street scenes.

But the major part of the story is still played in the two apartments, his and hers. Nor are their glamor apartments like Joan Crawford used to live in when she was playing shopgirls. They are cramped and crummy, like thousands of such places in Lower Manhattan.

As another concession to the screen, Gittel is a bit less Bronxian and Jerry somewhat less square than in the original. But both are enormously appealing as faultlessly played by Shirley MacLaine and Robert Mitchum.

Shirley Fits Part MacLaine is marvelous, as expected. A bit of a kook herself, she fitted perfectly into Gittel's black tights. She is forever the doormat, accustomed to having men take advantage of her generosity and surprised when one comes along to castigate her for it.

The casting of Robert Mitchum was more adventurous. He has not been noted as an actor of sensitivity, largely because he has seldom had a chance with sensitive roles. In "Seesaw" he gives new ammunition to that tidy band of rooters who have been saying for years that Mitchum is Hollywood's most underrated actor.

He has an uncanny ability for making his co-starring actresses look good. From Marilyn Monroe to Deborah Kerr, he has been able to supply the proper amount of rugged stuff for actresses to successfully play against. Note to parents: This is adult entertainment.

Boys Town Choir To Give DePere Concert Oct. 30

DEPERE—The Boys Town Choir from Boys Town, Neb., will appear in concert on the St. Norbert College campus Tuesday night, Oct. 30.

The choir's 15 performance in Pennings Hall of Fine Arts is being sponsored by the student chapter of the Music Educators National Conference.

The choir performed last at St. Norbert College in 1959 when they sang before an overflow crowd. Tickets are available by mail from the St. Norbert Music Department.

2 Casts Perform in Long Broadway Drama

NEW YORK (AP) — Two casts share performing duties on Broadway in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

Because the Edward Albee drama runs three hours, the management picked a separate group of players to appear in the two matinees each week. The other company will give the six evening performances.

Gilbert and Sullivan Hit The Music Bell

BY TV SCOUT

8-10 (Channel 4-5) — The Bell Telephone Hour has a distinct treat for Gilbert and Sullivan fans, among its other pleasures tonight.

Marty Green, a veteran Savoyard, and Cyril Ritchard, a rookie in these works, team up for a series of solos and duets. The show opens with Barbara Cook and Robert Goulet and some selections from current Broadway musicals. Claudio Arrau, a great Beethoven pianist, does the third movement of the Emperor Concerto. Ballet stars Carla Fracci and Erik Bruhn dance a pas de deux from the seldom-performed "La Sylphide" (not to be confused with "Les Sylphides"). (Color)

6:30-7:30 (Channel 4-5) — It's a Man's World has a wonderfully warm and funny look at youth in this week's episode. Vern (Randy Boone) figures what he needs is a good tattoo, and heads for the sinful city of Exeter where tattoo parlors abound. He takes young Howie with him, so big brother Wes, his girl friend, friend Tom, and his girl friend ride to the rescue.

7:30-8 (Channel 11) — The Rifleman trots out a couple of standard Western plots, mixes them all together and comes up with a standard Western plot. Chuck Connors and his new leading lady (Patricia Blair) are marooned in the lady's hotel, with some other characters, when someone comes down with what may be smallpox.

7:30-8 (Channel 2) — The comedy gets a bit wild on The Lucy Show this week. Miss Ball, as it must to all checkbook-balancers, has a feud with her bank and winds up getting a check for $2,000 — a mistake, since all the banker's lesson, she figures she'll keep it for a time but, of course, loses it.

8-9 (channel 11) — Stoney Burke battles some pretty strong evils this week. Scott Marlowe plays a mentally sick boy whose fear prompts him to enter the Brahmin-bull riding contest. He and his pals battle Stoney (Jack Lord) and his pals in a series of fights that are frequently too brutal.

9-9:30 (Channel 2) — The Loretta Young Show has Loretta, that fine heartside psychiatrist, practicing her art in a big way. It seems daughter Binkie (Carol Syndes) is a last-minute entrant in the Student Council presidency race. She stands a good chance of winning because she is popular with the "in" group and her opponent is a non-conformist. So Loretta decides her daughter needs a lesson in the advantages of non-conforming more than she needs the high office.

9-10 (Channel 11) — Ben Casey gives its two guest stars, Steven Hill and Janet Margolin, good parts. Hill is a dying convict whom Casey saves for the executioner. And Miss Margolin was blinded in an explosion which killed her father. A cornea transplant would restore her sight, and Hill has the connex to give her, but she is so guilt-ridden she refuses the operation.

10-10:30 (Channel 4-5) — Tonight's guests are Walter Goudner, Patrice Munsel, George Jessel and The Singing Grandmothers (Color)
